BURLEY MARKET UPDATE - 1988

To fight foreign producers Analysts warn production must increase to fight competition

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — according to one tobacco company official. Burley growers that if companies paid higher prices, the farmers would grow more leaf. "History will tell a buyer that paying more does not necessarily increase the amount of tobacco that you're able to buy," Norvell told the Lexington Herald-Leader after speaking at the Council for Burley Tobacco on Friday. "That isn't the way the system operates. He said the auction system prevents a buyer from paying more to get more tobacco. Auction rules allow a buyer to bid $1.64 a pound for a pile of tobacco and competing buyers can raise their bids to the same price. The auctioneer will divide the pile equally among the bidders." Norvell said the only effect in raising the bid is that the price increased. Asked whether a higher price one year might mean greater production in subsequent years, Norvell said, "You certainly cannot argue with the point that if the price got high enough it would result in increased production. But it's very difficult for an individual company to try and cause that price to go up and stay up."

County Ordinance NO. 820.2 makes illegal dumping in county dumpsters punishable by fine of up to $250.00, with each violation constituting a separate offense. Illegal dumping includes depositing anything in dumpsters not in leak-proof plastic bags or other suitable containers, anything that would harm dumpsters or pickup equipment, and dead animals, furniture, appliances, brush, lumber or other large items. Violators will be prosecuted. (Published by The Carlisle Mercury, Thursday, December 29, 1988)

Eye Openers By Dr. Robert F. Pretzsch, Ophthalmologist

WELCOME 1989! For your own eye health and good vision, keep that New Year's resolution and have a complete eye examination now. An annual eye examination keeps up with the gradual changes taking place in your eyes, changes occur regardless of age and in most people the muscles controlling the shape of the eye's lens eventually begin to lose their elasticity, causing a gradual decline in your focusing ability. There is blurred vision at normal reading distances. You may feel eye strain or get headaches after doing close work. Professionally prescribed reading glasses, bifocals or trifocals can compensate. Cataracts and glaucoma tend to occur greatest in the 55 plus age group. Cataracts, a natural aging disorder, cause gradual clouding of the lens of the eye. Glasses can improve your vision until the cataract is ready to be removed. Glaucoma, the build up of pressure in the eye, has no symptoms in its early stages, but it can be detected early by a complete eye examination. Treatment can prevent vision loss and possible blindness.
