Out on a limb: Not This Guy!

With the pre-election hype going on in Kentucky, along with the entire United States, many will be going out on a limb to pick a favorite in the presidential campaign.

At least one I have heard of, Milt Patton, from Georgetown, will possibly man the democratic ticket in an effort to unseat the incumbent.

Also on the local scene, Adrian Arnold, state representative from Montgomery County, whose district also includes Nicholas County, will be seeking re-election again this year.

Of course, locally, we have had our elections for city officers, but it won't be too long before we begin to hear the stirrings of candidates seeking school board seats, some offices in the courthouse, and more.

Scrapbook

It's not of checkbook but more of the worst feeling in the world. I was just sure there was another hole. No such luck. If nothing else, the experience probably saved me some money.

Miller's Message By Chip Miller

The most powerful weapon

We live in the modern age of communication. Instantly, someone with the money can transport whatever message they want to convey across the airwaves to an audience wherever or where ever they please.

What I say is, we, the public, have the most powerful weapon to combat any message we don't agree with - the off switch.

If Jerry Falwell upsets your stomach on Sunday mornings... click and watch cartoons.

If President Reagan wants to talk disarmament and you don't agree, click and you won't have to listen.

I wonder if politicians realize the power hold someone with a remote control has over a push?

We Americans should be exposed to any and all opinions, yet I believe we also have that power to just turn it off whenever we don't agree or want to listen.
