

GENERAL NEWS

A Legislative Perspective with Representative Adrian Arnold

With the deadline for passing legislation in the 1988 session of the General Assembly set for less than four weeks away, two concerns by majority party members have already apparently caused the torch for a tax increase to smolder.

It seems that even the threat of reduced state government programs, including critical education programs, has not made tax increases in the House of Representatives seem like a necessary evil.

Without a tax increase, House members are looking to the floor to find budget alternatives for the fiscal year 1989.

It is worth noting that the threat of reduced state government programs, including critical education programs, has not made tax increases in the House of Representatives seem like a necessary evil.

Ford's Footnote by Senator Ed Ford

Child safety, economic development, and tough controls on dangerous chemicals were not used, or were being used improperly.

One Senator cited State Police statistics that showed an accident on all 10 children for every 100 children.

Over the years, I have been dismayed at the number of children killed or maimed on our state's highways because child restraint seats were not used, or were being used improperly.

As your local South Central Bell manager, I'd like to introduce "Your Telephone Connection," a column that will appear from time to time throughout the year.

In this column we plan to discuss subjects of interest in Carlisle and Nicholas County, not only topics relating to your telephone service, but those of general community interest as well.

Take a look at the Customer Guide. Looking under the "About Your HII" section, you see that you can call your home service representative toll-free at 1-877-4500 (Monday-Friday, a.m. - 5 p.m.) to get an explanation of your HII.

One more example: Say you want to call an ad friend in Arizona, but you aren't sure exactly how to place the call. To answer your question, you can look in the Customer Guide and check the "How To Dial Long Distance" chart.

Just of course, the Customer Guide hits much more than just these three examples. In the Customer Service Guide you can find out about ordering and using Customer Calling Services, paying your phone bill, establishing phone service for a new home or business, calling Directory Assistance, and much, much more.

The next time you have a question about your phone service, you may already have the answer at your fingertips. Your Customer Guide is the first place to look.

We've designed the Customer Guide to give you the facts quickly and efficiently - and that makes it easier to get the most out of your telephone service.

The Customer Guide - it's another part of South Central Bell's commitment to providing Carlisle and Nicholas County with first-class telephone service.

When you have a question... you need an answer. When you have a question about phone service in Carlisle and Nicholas County, the answer may be as close as your telephone directory.

For example, suppose a storm knocks down your home telephone line. Getting to a neighbor's phone to call for repair may be easy enough, but who should you call? Check the Customer Guide section on page 2 of your telephone directory, you see the heading "Home Telephone Service." Looking under the column, you find the number for home repair service (1-877-4111). You call this toll-free number (no charge) for the call, and South Central Bell is on the way to assist you.

Or suppose you don't understand an item on your home telephone bill. Take a look at the Customer Guide. Looking under the "About Your HII" section, you see that you can call your home service representative toll-free at 1-877-4500 (Monday-Friday, a.m. - 5 p.m.) to get an explanation of your HII.
