Moorefield church to celebrate

The Moorefield United Methodist Church is celebrating it's 100th anniversary Sunday October 9 with a special program, open house and reception at 2:00 p.m.

The special program will include is a bit of history about the church and a message from a former pastor.

Nancy Lyons, publicity chairman for the program, has written to members now residing as far away as Texas and Massachusetts. She is hoping for 150 guests.

The interior of the church is still much the same as when the church was a Methodist and Presbyterian church, she said. The pews are all original, along with the communion set and bible.

The bell is also the original one, she said. About five years ago, while cleaning out the bell tower, her husband found a bird's nest in the bell with "a bright, fresh one dollar bill" woven into the nest.

Having a 100 year celebration is quite a feat, Lions said. Churches often burned, because of their wood heating.

But I am going to

Amanda

The above words as well as a copy of the above letter from Amanda are published in the Week of Compassion Report/1988 which is sent to all Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) in the United States and Canada.

The Amanda who wrote the letter is Amanda Graham of Georgetown, Ky. Amanda is the daughter of Harold and Phyllis Graham and the grand-daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Orville Atkinson of Carlisle.

She wrote the letter last year during the Week of Compassion and gave it to the church as well as her gift of money. Amanda goes to the First Christian Church (Disciple of Christ), Georgetown, Ky.
