Nicholas to meet Boyle

LEXINGTON — Nicholas County will meet Boyle County in a second round match of televised high school academic competition. The event will be aired Saturday, December 30, at noon on WLEX, Channel 18.

Nicholas County defeated Lexington Henry Clay in its first round match. The 1989-90 school year's high school competition began with 32 schools represented. Nicholas County is one of 12 teams remaining in the championship competition. Nicholas County will be held at Morehead State University January 20.

The Academic Sweet Sixteen program is based in Lexington and coordinated by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government.

Since it began, 265 individual scholarships have been awarded to students from 44 different counties.

Parks Homemakers

The Parks Homemakers met at 1:30 p.m., December 9, 1989 at Eddie's Restaurant for lunch. After lunch we went to Eva Grimes home for our meeting. Helen Roberts, president called the meeting to order.

Eva Carter gave the devotion and roll call was answered by each member telling what traditional thing they do at Christmas each year with their family.

Nicholas hospital gets good marks

The Markey Center at the Nicholas County Medical Center, for instance, has one word dedicated to working with cancer patients. They are obviously going to have a high rate. In eastern Kentucky, hospitals have to deal with the problems of congestive heart failure, hypertension, pneumonia and nutritional and metabolic disorders. Hester said.

However, there is one other flaw with the survey, which may be a bit more difficult to overcome. The time parameters HCA uses to determine its final calculations is 30 days.

If a patient is admitted to the hospital, treated and released before the 30-day time period, they are still part of the survey and if they suffer a fatal accident, the survey counts that person's death as a high-death rate.

"Because we are a primary care facility, any case to be acceptable in the determination, whether the hospital had time to treat the patient again or not."

Though hospitals have apparently voiced criticism of the death by any cause rule in the past, Hester said, it is still being used. Hester said.

However, as a primary care facility, there is more to its low death rate than merely caring for those with less arduous ailments, he said.
