Number of hunters increases

During the last three months of 1989, an estimated 15,000 people will qualify as safe hunters in Kentucky.

Since the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources began its hunter education program in 1977, more than 87,000 have received hunter safety certificates, and of that number, more than 10,000 were issued earlier this year.

The demand for hunter education has increased dramatically this year, mainly because people know hunter training will be mandatory for some 1991.

Beginning that year, anyone born after January 1, 1975 will be required to take a state-approved hunter education course before purchasing a hunting license in Kentucky.

For more information on hunter education classes offered in your area, call the Division of Conservation Education, (502) 564-4762.

Deer Whistles May Be Hoax

Whistles sold as deer warning devices on vehicles may not do the job.

According to some advertisements for these warning devices, ultrasonic sound (created from air flow generated by an equipped vehicle in motion) frightens deer away from roadways.

Two independent research teams found at least one brand of deer whistle did not emit ultrasonic sound as advertised, according to an article published in the October issue of Deer and Deer Hunting magazine.

The article goes on to say little is know about the auditory limits of deer, and if deer do hear ultrasound, it is unclear how this would affect their behavior.
