COMMUNITY Christmas tree safety tips

By The Associated Press Leaders with shimmering lights and tinsel, a Christmas tree inspires holiday cheer. But, Friendly Exchange magazine warns, it also can be the start of a holiday nightmare. A fire in a Christmas tree burns very intensely. It burns so fast it's almost like an explosion and it can fill the room with fire almost instantly, says Jason Johnson, a fire investigator in Des Moines. "It is an extremely hot and extremely fast-moving fire." The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) reports that during the years 1982 to 1986 the most recent statistics, 554 residential fires nationwide were caused by ignition of Christmas trees, resulting in 12 deaths, 67 injuries and $10.3 million in direct residential property damage. Compared with the total number of residential fires nationwide, 551,500 in 1987, the percentage caused by trees is small. But these fires are so fast and intense the consequences can be deadly. Ignition can come from any heat source. Johnson says the cause often is children playing with matches or candles near a tree. Decorative tree lights are another culprit. "Trees are so tender and dry at times, even a spark from a frayed light cord can ignite them," he says. Follow these guidelines from the Iowa State Fire Marshal's Office, NFPA, the Insurance Information Institute and the National Safety Council to keep the holiday safe. - Choose a fresh tree. If possible, buy from a local tree farm to ensure freshness. Trees to be used should be on the ground two or three times; a few needles should fall. Bend the tips of the branches. If the tree is fresh, the branches should bend easily and not break. Grasp a branch between a thumb and forefinger about 6 inches from the tip. Pull toward the tip. Needles should adhere to the branch. - Have the tree treated with a flame-retardant solution. Sprays are available or the tree can be taken to a florist for treatment. But remember, this does not make the tree fireproof. - Before putting the tree up clean the tree stand with water and bleach solution. (Use about one cup of bleach and enough water to fill the stand. Rinse thoroughly.) This reduces the growth of germs that can block the tree's water intake. - Cut 1 or 2 inches from the tree's base, then place the tree in a deep stand with plenty of water. "It helps to keep the tree as wet as possible," says Julia Reynolds of the NFPA. Put the tree in a deep stand and refill it every day. Flu season begins

With the inevitable flu season due to begin in Kentucky in December, now is the time to get ahead. State Department for Health Services officials recommend that anyone with chronic heart or lung disease should have a flu shot. Also those with chronic kidney disease or diabetes or residents of nursing homes should be immunized. Anyone older than 65 and physicians, nurses and other health care professionals who have contact with high-risk patients should consider having a flu shot, officials say. For the vast majority of people, influenza is a minor illness that lasts only a few days," said Reginald Finger, M.D., communicable disease branch manager. "So these people who are normally healthy should not need a flu shot. But if a person has a chronic disease—especially a heart or lung problem—the illness can be life-threatening," he said.
