From Left Field By Josh Shepherd

For every millard stories there are in the naked city, there are about one or two in town. But the furious scramble for news, any news, as people who met with me during the day Monday will attest, goes...

But consider, a while well call what I call dry weeks. (Actually I call them something else, but censorship restrains me.)

Just as Joe Montana must have yawned his way through the third quarter against Denver, I noticed the Shark's towel was perhaps the driest it's ever been since the beginning of the college basketball season.
