Hamm - Venable are married in a January 6 ceremony

Margaret Ellen Hamm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hamm of Carlisle, became the bride of Dr. T. Leon Venable, son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Venable of Durham, North Carolina, Saturday, January 6, 1990, 2 p.m., at Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia.

The Reverend Ann Fitzgerald, Associate Minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Paducah, Kentucky, and close friend of the couple, while at Agnes Scott College, officiated the ceremony here in a white altar decorated with arrangements of mixed flowers in mauve, pink and burgundy.

Organist Barry Davis played various selections before the ceremony. The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore the wedding gown which had been worn by her mother. It was a floor-length gown of white tulle, accented by a scoop neckline embellished with sequins and pearls and long tapered sleeves ending in point at the wrists.

The bouffant skirt, accented by a simulated bustle, ended in a sweep train. Her veil, fashioned by the bride, was of illusion adorned with hand sewn pearls and fell from a beehive of pearls and flowers.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white rose buds, lily of the valley and ivory. Miss Sarah Hamm served her sister as maid of honor. Miss Jean Watkins of Minneapolis, Minnesota, college roommate of the bride, was bridesmaid.

They wore tea-length gowns of burgundy lace and satin accented in the back with a long, low, ruffled collar. Her wedding dress was a white tulle gown of pink miniature carnations and rosebuds. Dr. Venable wore a charcoal gray tuxedo with a white cummerbund and tie. His boutonniere was two white rosebuds.

Dr. Carl Stephen Nichols of Charlotte, North Carolina, was best man. Groomsman was Dr. David C. Finster of Springfield, Ohio. Best friends of the groom, and were attired in identical tuxedos and a single rosebud boutonniere. Mrs. Hamm, mother of the bride, wore a tea-length gown of suede rose chiffon and Mrs. Venable, mother of the groom, wore a tea-length gown of rose tulle and chiffon.
