McGinnis attends meeting

Circuit Judge Robert W. McGinnis of the 18th Judicial Circuit, attended the 1990 Circuit Judges Judicial College at Kentucky Dam Village State Park, Gilbertsville, October 28 thru November 1.

One day of the agenda was devoted to providing judges with issues posed by reproductive technologies which arise in a variety of contexts ranging from genetic screening and diagnosis to utilization of non-coital means of procreation such as invitro fertilization to the obligations of pregnant women to their fetuses.

Additional topics covered at this year's college included admissibility of demonstrative evidence and photographs in related evidence, hearsay regarding confrontation and confession of codefendants, development in scientific evidence and the judicial canons which govern judicial campaign conduct.

The college was sponsored and conducted by the Administrative Office of the Courts Education Services, with course curriculum designed by the Circuit Judges' Education Committee.
