Tots To Teens by Sue Ellen Sullivan Dear Sue: I have a very independent five-year-old daughter who doesn't want to walk her to the school bus stop. She is only in kindergarten, but she thinks she is old enough to go to the bus stop by herself. I can see the bus stop in my mind, but I can't get her to go. I'm sure she'll be fine, but I'm just not sure. I'm sure she'll be fine, but I'm just not sure.

Broderick wins Geography Bee

Wesley Broderick, a student from Nicholas County Elementary School, narrowly defeated Adam Hatten in the school finals of the National Geographic Society's Geography Bee.

The competition, which ran for two weeks, involved all seventh and eighth students and was broken down into quarter- and semi-final matches before the championship competition was held with Hatten and Broderick. The oral competition was conducted before a panel of teachers covering various topics concerning the world and locations in it.

Correction

The date for the Hamilton anniversary was incorrectly printed in last week's edition of The Carlisle Mercury. The Hamilton's were married on Feb. 8.
