The heaviest snow of the winter fell between Tuesday and Tuesday and Wednesday morning with unofficial recordings placing the snowfall at from six to 11 inches. The heavy snow was accompanied by a cold wave with thermometers to 16 degrees above zero Tuesday night. About half of the school buses were unable to make their rounds.

Dr. W. B. Hopkins, local physician and surgeon, sustained several fractured ribs and minor cuts and bruises last Thursday night when his automobile collided with another car on a curve on U. S. Highway 68 near the home of J. Clarke Lee.

February 15, 1899 was the oldest day ever recorded by the weather bureau in Kentucky. The official recording for Lexington on that date was 20 degrees below zero. The date being county court day in Carlisle, a day which usually brought large crowds into town, was marked by the fact that only one horse was hitched to the hitchrack.
