Certified Cities team plans to visit Carlisle

Carlisle has entered the Certified Cities Program for 1990 in an effort to stimulate economic growth and increase quality of life. The community will be evaluated on economic and tourism development, chamber organization, community planning, utilities, downtown revitalization, and community appearance. Sponsors by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, the Certified Cities Program recognizes Kentucky communities that meet strict requirements in community and economic development.

Received national awards as the only program of its type implemented by the private sector. Evaluation team members scheduled to assess Carlisle on Friday, June 29 include Jeff Egar, Wayne Foster, J.R. Wilbur, Drew Dennis, Larry Southard, Charlie Beach, Darrell Gilman, Keith Logan, Terry Baxson, Bob Hazelrigg, Sandy Napper, Tom Denham, Caryl Pfeiffer, Brent Dickinson, Mark McCord, Glenn Sims and Joe Kelley. This year's Certified Cities will be announced in November at an awards luncheon in Louisville. The award denotes that certified cities are among the best places in Kentucky to live and do business. According to Kristy Gadsby, program coordinator with the Kentucky Chamber, the Certified Cities Program is a systematic method for cities to prepare for the challenges of the future and remain progressive. "The Certified Cities Program unites local leaders in a common effort to achieve economic growth, civic improvement, and a better quality of life," said Kristy Gadsby in describing the program.
