biology, physics, chemistry, and computer fundamentals — consisted of 40 multiple choice questions and an essay team sponsored by Kathy Greene said.

no problem Scoutmaster Bill Guthrie, who along with Charles Campbell organized the campout, said the theme of the snow campout was "low-impact."

"Low impact camping means the scouts are not too disturb the environment where they camp. They do not cut live limbs or build campfires."

Dance planned for little league participants

Little league basketball awards will be presented March 17 at 6 p.m. at the NCHS gym.

Following the awards program a dance will be held for participants in the league.

Seven players from the chess team participated in the regional tournament. Nicholas took the region by a half point over Sayre.

"Deitz tried to go to an early start and put pressure on me to make a mistake, but I was able to counter most of his moves and he resigned the game," Hunt said.

Hunt's win marks the first defeat Deitz has been handed at night. "It wasn't perfect, but considering the conditions previous to the campout, it was a success," Guthrie said.

To be eligible, scouts must have attained first class rank in the program. This rank indicates the scout has mastered the essential skills necessary to survive in the wilderness under difficult weather conditions.
