Nicholas County GATE students were awarded first place in the News and Script category for the 1990 Kentucky Video and Script Competition.

The competition, sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky University Department of Mass Communication, accepted entries from 62 elementary and high schools in Kentucky in January.

Nicholas County Elementary GATE students, which broadcast a news program during the 1988-89 school year entitled "Focus", Hearing of the competition, Guthrie submitted the script from one of their news programs for consideration.

For their efforts, Nicholas County received a first place award from the University competition, presented to them Monday by Dr. John Taylor, associate professor of video production at Eastern.

Taylor said over 100 entries were received for judging. After presenting a certificate to students, Taylor gave them a few hints in video photography and an invitation to consider Eastern for future academic study.

Guthrie said the GATE students received a special Kentucky education grant that helped fund the project.
