

Anderson seeking reelection

By Kim Boyd
The Carlisle Mercury Staff
CARLISLE — James "Jimmy Dan" Anderson said his experience gives him an edge in the upcoming election for the Nicholas County Board of Education.

Anderson has served on the Board of Education in Nicholas County and has been the Chairman of the Board for the past two years.

Anderson said he is an asset to the board and will continue to be so, if elected, for several reasons.

He said his experience in finance lends him the ability to understand the financial of the school system.

Anderson is a financial analyst with IBM in Lexington where he has been employed for 23 years.

Anderson said his concern for the children and the people of this county is sincere.

"Basically, I'm interested in the board because I'm interested in the children of the county. I enjoy it."

Anderson, a Nicholas County native, said he would like to stay on the board to assist the Robert Gilbert, Nicholas County School Superintendent, who has not been long on the job.

Anderson said throughout his time on the board, he has seen the number of courses expand and look to see them expand even more in the future.

He added he wants "to work on getting more courses for college bound students" so the students of Nicholas County will be prepared for college.

Anderson said often graduates of Nicholas County are not prepared for college level courses and have a hard time catching up with the pace of other students.

He said he would like to see Nicholas County on par with the rest of the Kentucky as Nicholas county students would be more competitive.

"I always hear our kids need to take courses to get up to the level of students to compete. I want to eliminate that problem."

He said he wants Nicholas County students "to have the necessary curriculum so they can go to college and not be behind at the start."

He added he wants Nicholas county students to be on the level of students from other counties so they can carry their education to college and go from there.

Anderson said another major concern of his is to put partitions in the elementary school. He said walls would improve the facility and the learning possibilities. He said the open classroom idea creates too much disturbance for the students.

"I think the walls will improve the elementary school more than anything we could do."

He added closed classrooms will contribute more to the learning process.

Anderson said the additional funds from the education reform act and increased taxes will allow the board to build walls in the elementary school.

He said the increase in taxes also allow for a bus garage, something Anderson said the state has recommended to the county several times.

Hall is challenger

By Kim Boyd
The Carlisle Mercury Staff
CARLISLE — Roger Hall, the challenger for the District Two election for the Nicholas County Board of Education, said he thinks the students should come first in Nicholas County.

Hall said because he has three children in the Nicholas County School System, he is more concerned with the quality of education in the county. He said he thinks having children in the school system should not be a prerequisite to be on the Board of Education.

"I think the children let me know what is going on that normally I wouldn't know," he said.

He said if elected to the board he would make himself more aware of what constituents want. She added the welfare of students and the quality of education given to them would be her top priorities.

Hall said the priorities of the Board of Education are also something he would want to be elected.

"I'm not against athletics but priorities should be on academics first."

He said Nicholas County Academic club don't get as much support from the Board of Education or the superintendent as athletic events do.

He said the most crucial issue in education now is the increase in taxes. She said the drastic increase in taxes led by the Board of Education is unwarranted.

"I don't think it is necessary to increase taxes as much as they did."

The school taxes were raised 13.9¢ per $1000 this year by the Nicholas County Board of Education.

She added if the money raised from the increase was spent on students the increase would be more understandable.

Hall said it is important for county residents and property owners to know where the money. She said the board did not say where the funds would be spent.

She went on to say if elected she would take all of this into consideration when the tax issue comes before next year's board.

"I can't see the point in raising taxes again next year."

Hall said the board could have gone about raising taxes in a different way and not have raised the rate as much as they did.

She said, for example, the new utility tax will raise 170 thousand per year.

She said the tax increase will be used to build a bus garage and to buy partitions for the elementary school.

Hall said, "I don't think we needed a tax increase to do those two things."

She said she did agree some amount of increase in taxes was necessary to increase the quality of education in Nicholas County.

Hall also said she thinks money raised should be for students' benefit, not just to build more.

"I'm more concerned about what the kids inside the school have."

Hall said there are students in the high school who don't have textbooks for some of their classes and money needs to be spent on them.

Punkin'-pickin' time
 Over 100 kindergarten children on the Stephens farm on U.S. 68, between Millersburg and Carlisle, Tuesday morning. The children were allowed to pick out pumpkins previously picked for them. While at the farm, the children also toured the donkeys in an adjacent field. Kindergarten aides loaded the pumpkins into the vehicles for the children to take back to school.
