Farmers may be able to secure easier credit

By William Million
Of The Carlisle Mercury Staff

CARLISLE — Because of a new program offered by the Farmer's Home Administration, Nicholas Countians may find it easier to obtain credit from local lenders.

The Interest Assistance Program provides strong incentives for local lenders to make loans to farmers who would not otherwise qualify.

FmHA will pay up to four percentage points of interest for farmers to help them qualify for FmHA guaranteed loans.

FmHA County Supervisor Stephen S. Pratt said "This program helps the farmer get the cash flow the bank needs to grant the loan by lowering the interest rates by up to four points."

The Interest Assistance Program is part of the Farm Bill signed into law by President George Bush last November.

The FmHA will pay only the percentage needed to help the farmer cash flow with a small reserve.

The FmHA guaranteed loan is made by a bank, Farm Credit Services, or other local lenders with an agreement by the FmHA that if the loan goes bad, FmHA will compensate up to 90 percent of the loss.

Pratt says the 90 percent guarantee makes local lenders more cooperative to loan to farmers.

"The lenders are more willing to make the loans now that their loans are guaranteed at least 90 percent. This should allow more farmer to receive credit, especially with land prices as low as they are."

FmHA also provides loans to low income families to buy, build, or repair homes.

Families must meet income guidelines to get a direct loan from the FmHA funds.

FmHA also reduces the interest rates on the loan to make the payments lower, depending on the financial needs of the families.

The property must meet FmHA standards to qualify, but there is no maximum or minimum age on the house.

FmHA also offers a Rural Rental Housing assistance program at the district office in Lexington. The program makes partial or complete rental payments depending on financial need.

An FmHA representative is at the ASCS office on the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

Anyone wishing to apply for assistance, or having questions, can speak to the representative or call the office at 234-2333.
