Education Reform celebration is planned April 9

Kentucky's successful first year of education reform will be celebrated April 9 by Governor Wallace G. Wilkinson, Commissioner of Education Thomas C. Boysen, key legislative leaders, Supreme Court members, eduction officials and the students of Frankfort's Second Street School.

"No other state has taken the dramatic strides that Kentucky has taken during the past year," Wilkinson said. "We are the national leader in education reform. Kentucky has never been in this position before. We have every reason to celebrate as we have successfully begun to institute the reforms."

With the theme "One Year into the Future," the celebration will begin at 1 p.m. April 9 in the second Street School Gymnasium, 506 W. Second Street, Frankfort.

"It will be a fun event," Boysen said. "We have many accomplishments this first year, and it is appropriate that we pause to rejoice."

There will be an 11- by 14-foot birthday cake and ice cream, both donated by the Kroger Co. The gym will be decorated with balloons, and Second Street students will sing "Happy Birthday" to KERA.

In addition to Gov. Wilkinson and Commissioner Boysen, those expected to participate are House Speaker Don Blandford, Senate President Pro Tem John "Eck" Rose, and the newly elected chair of the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education and members of the Kentucky Supreme Court, which accelerated the reform movement through a landmark court decision.

Special guests attending will be members of the Task Force on Education Reform and a wide cross section of business, education and community leaders.

The real dignitaries will be the students of Second Street School as representatives of all the young people of Kentucky who will receive lifelong benefits from KERA.

The ceremony will commemorate the one-year anniversary of the signing into law of KERA by Wilkinson on April 11, 1990.

During the first year, KERA has provided:

- $186 million to close the per-pupil spending gap among Kentucky's 176 school districts and equalize opportunities for students in historically depressed areas;
- $18 million for preschool for 6,000 four-year-olds;
- $21 million to provide additional instruction to struggling students in all grades;
- Progress toward the development of an outcome-based curriculum and student assessment system.

KERA also provided for new education leadership. As a result of the reform act:

- Boysen became Kentucky's first appointed commissioner of education effective January 1;
- A new 11 - member State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education has been appointed and confirmed by the General Assembly;
- Penney Sanders was named to head the Legislative Research Commission's new office of Education Accountability in December.
- An estimated 150 schools in 50 districts have elected to form school councils under the law's provisions for school-based decision making.

Road plan announced

FRANKFORT– Kentucky Transportation Secretary and Commissioner of Highways Milo D. Bryant has announced the approval of the 1991-92 Rural Secondary Program for Nicholas County.

"This Program will provide funds for maintenance and traffic improvements to Nicholas County in the amount of $214,100," Bryant said.

"In addition, we have scheduled two road improvements projects. Both are for blacktop resurfacing and are located on KY 3315, Cassidy Creek, and KY 32, Short Pike. The total estimated cost of the program is $420,412."

Bryant went on to explain that the funds provided for the Program are from the Rural Secondary Account and are made possible through the collection of state motor fuel taxes.

Each county receives a share of the funds based on population, land size and rural road mileage.

Both projects included in the Program will be accomplished through the contract and will be advertised for bids as soon as possible, Bryant added.
