

Nicholas County Public Library observes National Library Week

By Susan Railing
The region to still have sign-atures on book cards as a check out procedure.

Next week April 28 through May 4 will be National Library Week for all over the books. Patrons may drop them in the depository or return them to the library. No fines will be charged.

"We encourage all patrons to get their children involved in reading not only during the school year, but during their summer vacation. This helps children continue to read and become avid readers."

Director, Jerrisa Anderson, said. The summer reading program will begin June 11 for Lexington Public Library. Movies will be shown, story-telling, crafts and interesting activities will be taking place each Tuesday in the library.

Pre-registration is a must. Call 289-5505 by June 10.

Anderson reported that the GED video cassette will be in place in June. They were donated by Melbourne Mills, Jr.

They not only help patrons working on their GED, but patrons taking tests to get better jobs or into different fields of employment.

The Kentucky Library Network has information on the Nicholas County Library Board that we will have a summer. This will give access to all Kentucky libraries for the purpose of participating in the network of Interlibrary loan Service.

The Library Board approved the purchase of a new "charger," every patron will have their own plastic library card. The Nicholas County Library is one of three within the network of Interlibrary loan Service.
