Occupancy permit expected August 27

Malissa Hall of the Carlisle Mercury... CARLISLE - The Nicholas County Elementary School should receive its temporary occupancy permit on Tuesday, August 27, said Bob Hamilton, Superintendent of Elder Construction. We have met all requirements and received certification for plumbing and the above and below ground sprinkler systems, he said. We still have to get our electrical certification and fire system certification, he said. The electric will be inspected by a certified electrical inspector to ensure that all installations meet required standards, he said. We should receive certification by Monday, August 26. The fire alarm system will be tested by the installer, who can then issue a certificate. We should have that certificate by Friday, August 23, he said. We tested the fire alarm system last Monday.

Hopkins hired as assistant coach

By Pam Bowles of the Carlisle Mercury... CARLISLE - Acting on a recommendation from Nicholas County High School Principal Greg Reid and the High School Site Based management council, Nicholas County Superintendent Robert Gilbert hired Robert Hopkins as assistant football coach. Site based Council chairman Greg Reid suggested the council recommend Robert Hopkins as assistant high school football coach, seventh and eighth grade football coach, and assistant baseball coach to Nicholas County Superintendent Robert Gilbert. The council was in agreement with the football coaching position, but a concern was voiced on his experience. Reid said he would inform Gilbert of his recommendation for Hopkins to coach football, but will ask him to check Hopkins' qualifications in baseball. A new grading scale has been approved for the Nicholas County High School system last Monday he said. The council decided the best

Continued from Page 1 insurance for the station. There are also a number of the fire departments that submit solely of a county budget and have no tax rate attached, Hughes said. For nearly 27 years, the 2.6 tax rate of the Nicholas County Fire Department has remained unchanged. Carlisle Mayor and former county fire fighter Frankie Hughes said. To augment the low level of funding the fire department receives from its collection on taxes, county fire fighters resorted to several fund raising tactics which have given them some additional support. Mark Hughes continued, but with rising costs on improved equipment and training, the fire department can no longer submit off of the $23,000 that makes up the department take in taxes. "The front of the fire department building needs major repair. The building does not have the funds to do that, but the chief priority of the fire department is the purchase of a fire truck. The 1963 model fire truck they have is on its last leg, Hughes said. In one run, driver discovered the brakes had gone out of the truck and was forced to employ the emergency brake in order to stop, Hughes said. Baker trades riches in business for education

By Josh Shepherd of the Carlisle Mercury... Baker's characteristic grins crosses his face as he leans forward on his desk in the office at Nicholas County High School and admits the private business world was very lucrative. But one glance at the bulletin board above him and you realize money is not a force guiding him. Stuck on the bulletin board with push pins are several thin strips of paper, the quotes written on them are all the subject of education or physical and spiritual health.

"I have a new quote up everyday. It's a method I like to use to remind me to do my job everyday," Baker said as he pulled several dozen strips of paper from his desk drawer, each with a printed quote. A Berea native, Baker is a graduate of Berea High School, a 1969 graduate of Cumberland College with a Bachelor's degree in History and Political Science with a minor in Geography. He worked in the subject matter, he said.

He also served one year as a member of the Board of Directors of the University of Kentucky. He has been a member of the Board of Directors of the University of Kentucky. He was constantly away from home for long periods of time and he felt he had lost touch with people. "Life, for me, became a thirty minute encounter with people. I don't believe that at that time I had anyone outside of my family that I could say was a dear friend. They were all business acquaintances. I felt, only I have something more to contribute working as an educator or school administrator than I ever would have had remaining in the private sector," Baker said.
