Brubaker outlines goal for the U.S. Dairy Industry

Unity and consensus, in the face of regional differences and an unstable political/economic climate, must be the dairy industry's goal for the 21st century.

Herman Brubaker, president of Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), relayed that message in his address at the Association's 1990 annual delegate meeting. MMI, a regional dairy cooperative based in Strongsville, Ohio, is the nation's sixth largest cooperative supplier of raw milk.

Pointing out the countless unpredictable events that shape today's marketplace, Brubaker called for all producers nationwide to move beyond their differences to create innovative programs and policies that reflect government goals and market needs.

"We can worry about the uncertainties that surround us. Or we can unite and concentrate upon those factors we can control and make them work for us," said Brubaker.

The key, he said, is for the industry to develop realistic solutions that can operate within the context of a business economy greatly impacted by uncontrollable factors like recession, the world shattering events, a urban Congress and an exploding federal deficit.

Through cooperation, Brubaker said producers can build a price stability program that eliminates the current roller coaster ride of milk prices. That industry think-tank process is already underway. Among the new ideas coming forward are producer "self-help" programs like producer-owned inventory controls or producer financed buy-out plans.

"National dairy policy will most likely look radically different in the coming years than it does now," he warned.

MMI'S role in this process is to remain a team player on local, regional and national industry issues. MMI General Manager Gordon Riehl reviewed several key areas in which MMI has taken a strong leadership role.

On the national front, MMI testified in support of the current federal order milk pricing system during national hearings this past fall. The U.S. Department of Agriculture called the hearings in response to the General Accounting Office's recommendation to eliminate federal orders and Congressional concerns over the program's validity in today's marketplace.

MMI is also taking a strong leadership role in initiating federal dialogue on the health insurance crisis and its impact on rural America's families and economy. MMI is calling for Congressional hearings on the matter.

Other national issues challenging all producers surround the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade negotiations and the possible elimination of protective U.S. dairy import restrictions, and the public's perception of milk safety as it relates to drug residues and bovine somatotrop (bST).

Price decline forecasted

Regarding farm milk prices, Riehl said falling commercial block cheese prices indicate a corresponding decline in the Minnesota-Wisconsin price (M-W, the base for determining all dairy producer pay prices) in the coming months.

Riehl forecasts the M-W to fall to $9.90 per hundredweight (cwt.) by spring 1991. Average pay price predictions for 1991 are $11.62 per cwt., that's $2.70 below 1990 price averages.

"We are plowing new ground in this industry," observed Riehl. "We've gone from very high to very low prices. A central unpredictable factor, that no one can determine, is the psychological impact this will have on dairy producers. And there are other factors at play. For instance, the milk-feed ratio will not be favorable in the upcoming months, cull cow prices are uncertain and off-farm employment is down. If the employment picture changes for the better, and prices remain down, we may see a rapid exit of farmers out of the business."

On a positive note, Riehl reported that commercial sales of milk, milkfat and solids-no-fat over the past 10 years, has risen 12.9 percent- from 126 billion pounds in 1980 to 142 billion pounds in 1989.

MMI is a 6,500 member dairy farmer owned cooperative encompassing an eight state midwestern area including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Kentucky, Maryland and West Virginia. Last year MMI marketed more than 3.7 billion pounds or 433.3 million gallons of milk.
