Dinner prayer puts it all in perspective?

Last Wednesday, July 10, we had the dubious chore of celebrating my birthday at the house.

Now certainly, everyone has had those nasty birthdays every year or so, unless of course you're a leap day - leap year baby.

Wide awake as anyone could be at 6 a.m., I struggled into eating breakfast and thanked the girls for their consideration.

Little notes adorned the bedside table from children in a birthday fashion, and a couple cards arrived at the office, but I knew at some point in time the other also had to drop.

Now more did I hit the door, than the middle daughter. Both hit me with: "Go to the store and get some chips for tomorrow."

Back from the store, I rounded the corner and stretched from post to post on my front porch in a sign, which had been carefully designed, proclaiming dad's milestone birthday.

Laughing and kidding aside, we gathered at the table for dad's birthday dinner.

It is routine at our house to say grace at meals, even if we are in a restaurant, Michael wants to do the praying, and we encourage that.

"Dear Lord," he said. "I'm so glad today is daddy's birthday. 'Lorley, Lorley, daddy's 40. 'Amen.' I guess that pretty well sums it up.

And so, for another week, thanks and thirty.

20 Years Ago Thursday, July 15, 1971 The Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association has issued a reminder to tobacco producers that the use of the insecticide DDT or DDE on their leaf crops will make the tobacco crop eligible for price support through the program.

30 Years Ago Thursday, July 17, 1961 Raymond Wesley, county superintendent of schools, announces the new high school is about 70 per cent complete.

40 Years Ago Thursday, July 17, 1941 Last week it was reported The Mercury that the blackberry crop in Nicholas County was not so good. Since that time, however, we have had numerous calls contradicting the statement. A majority agree that the famous Nicholas Blackberry crop is as heavy and well developed as in former years, which goes to show that newspapermen never give little about blackberries other than how they eat and ask for more.

On landfill closing... Fiscal Court takes action

CARLISLE — Nicholas County Fiscal Court heard from Mike Morgan, an engineer hired to write a closure plan for the landfill, Tuesday night and agreed on a bid notice to be advertised this month for garbage removal.

Water lines

When the original plan went into effect two years ago, residents of lower East Union road presented a petition with a list of households wanting the water lines cut.

Work, Barnes said, could possibly get started soon but the original water line project is complete in mid-August.

If all goes well District plans August operation

MOOREFIELD — If all goes well, the new water lines through Moorefield, Cassidy Creek, and Locust Grove should be in operation as early as mid-August, Jim Barnes, a member of the Sharpshooter Water District Board said Monday.

When we started we had about 300 people sign up for water tap installation. During the time that the project has been underway we have picked up about 240 new tap orders," Barnes said.

The project, which had its inception in 1967, involved the District has a contract with Mike Pryor for over five years now and we finally seeing the end of the project. It's a good feeling," Barnes said.

Parrish resigns NCHS position

By John Shepherd to the Courier-CAMELLE — According to a spokesperson at the Nicholas County School Board on Thursday, Nicholas County Board Director and teacher Shawn Parrish tendered his resignation from Nicholas County High School last Friday.

Although Parrish has a contract for the year, it is anticipated that the school board will accept his resignation without incident.

Efforts are being made to find a replacement for Parrish in the coming weeks.

The Carlisle Mercury-John Shepherd Photo Warren May, below, and Mike Creuchy, above, work steadily along Kentucky 36 just outside of Moorefield to install new water lines for the Sharpshooter Water District project slated for completion by mid-August. They are working on section A which will eventually connect with the area lines being installed on the Moorefield-Suzzard Road Road.
