

GENERAL NEWS

Carlisle Postmaster Charles Watkins explains why the reddish purple Bicentennial Stamp, allowed to be printed for only a limited number of days, could eventually become fairly valuable. Listening are Billie Jo Combs, Elementary School Principal Gerard Hammons, Stephanie Vance, Jeremy Hogg, and Nicky Clark. Below: This is the stamp of which Watkins speaks. The special Kentucky Bicentennial Stamp is a one of a kind. Watkins delivered a limited number of stamps to the elementary school and during the jail Bicentennial project awards program over the weekend.

Carlisle Choir cantata to perform this weekend

CARRIAGE — All right, say you're not just a basketball fan. You want more out of the upcoming weekend than a choice between wrestling with Lexington traffic and rabid holiday shoppers and the endless bouncing of an orange ball.

Saturday and Sunday night, then, might just be the ticket with the Carlisle Community Choir's annual Christmas Cantata.

The annual cantata, held at the Carlisle Baptist Church, features singers from a number of local church choirs. The Community Choir, estimated to be one of the largest community choir's assembled for the Cantata performance, will present "Love's Pure Light," written by Randy Vader / Jay Bouse, arranged and composed by Camp Kirkland.

The Cantata, a mixture of non-traditional and traditional Christmas music, should be another welcome break from the stress of preparing for the holidays.

Saturday night at 7:00 p.m. at the Baptist Church will be opening night performance. A second performance is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Sunday.
