Hollar's current contract with the city expires in March, but to facilitate a smoother transition between the old and new contract, and give a potential rival bidder time to prepare their offer.
"I'm a bit surprised we had no other bid offers," Mayor Frankie Hughes said.
Council members however, balked at the substantial increase in the monthly collection charge Hollar quoted. At $7800 a month, the bid was a considerable raise over the previous contract, but Hollar explained, the price increase was to meet the rise in his costs to dump.
"When we had the Nicholas County landfill, my cost was about $3.00 a yard and my trucks only had to travel about one mile," Hollar said. "With the closing of the county landfill, I struck a contract with a landfill in Mayville which charges $5 a yard and is a 40 mile drive.
"In a month's time I will have between 35-40 loads of garbage out to the Mayville dump. At about $120 per load, I look at expenses over $1200 a month," Hollar said.
The cost, however, comes out to still be one of the lowest in the state, Hollar claimed, with an average cost of $7.00 per person in Carlsile.
Council voted unanimously to accept the bid. Councilman Charlie Fay asked the council that city

NICHOLAS COUNTY — Give the Nicholas County Lady Jackets credit. When they are on top of the game, there's little any team can do to stop them.
Which doesn't mean the Bracken County Lady Bears didn't give the Lady Jackets something to worry about in the 10th region All-Star final. It took awhile for Nicholas County to assume control.
Kim Denkins had a great dunk in the fourth. Lady Jacket to enter the 10th region All-Star final. For the first quarter, the underdog playing power of the Lady Bears was their greatest advantage. They defense back worked the inside and forced the Jackets into a situation where they worked to keep up with the Lady Bears rather than work on an early lead. They Earlywine emerged as the most first quarter scorer, hitting for six of Nicholas' 11 total first quarter points. With one minute left to go in the first, the teams were tied 8-8. They kept the Jackets scoring low and maintained a slow pace that frustrated the Jackets. At the 20 second mark, the Bears led 10-8.
Denkins rebounded her own missed jumper and led the team in for a two point shot that got the game rolling.
She struck again at the 4:58 mark to launch the Jackets to a 12-6 lead.
Hatten held back, feeding the Bears inside for four minutes of the second quarter when both teams suffered a shooting drought that left the score lower shortly thereafter.
But just as Bracken's Brandy Lathem jammed the point for the Bears' last lead of the evening, the fourth Lady Jacket to enter the 10th region All-Star final was Kim Denkins, assumed game control.
Kim Denkins, at 4:19, went to the line for foul shots. She hit the first one, but when she missed the second, Hatten bounded inside and came up with the rebound.
