and to three months.
"If you're only able to commit funds to keep this organization alive three months, don't waste the taxpayer's money. If this county is to have this kind of organization then it must dedicate itself to its growth over years," Brown said.

First National Bank President, Lanny Hutchison agreed and pledged First National Bank's continuing support as well, inviting the authority to bring people in to participate in meetings with Frankfort representatives.

Nicholas County is ready, Marshall said. It is over the hump as far as Frankfort officials are concerned, he said.
"By long term commitment, most meant a commitment to the board and its outline of a five year strategy plan. Industrial Authority director Spaul Marshall outlined at the beginning of the meeting.

Eastern Star celebrates 75th anniversary

CARLISLE - In August of 1916 the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Chatham, Marie Cheatham, was the victim of a drowning in the Linking River. On November 23 of that same year an application was initiated by a group of Nicholas County citizens to have an Eastern Star Chapter founded in Carlisle.

The tragic death of little Marie Cheatham inspired members of the newly formed Eastern Star chapter in to commemorate her memory and remind its members of its duties to the organization by naming the chapter after her.

which men and women may be included. It encircles the earth with over 10,000 Chapters worldwide. Though its teachings are based upon the Bible, the Order of the Eastern Star opposes to religion and is a fraternal order. Its members are comprised of men who are Master Mason and women with specific Masonic relationships.

Through this fraternal service to humanity, its members strive to build a better, more fulfilling way of life for all. There are now about 146 members of the Mary Chapter in Carlisle and its seven and half decades of service are too numerous to record in the space of a single news story.

when finished they would sell and pay for one of the stained glass windows to be installed in the Daughters' Lodge. The cost of a window was $7,000. The quilt was complete when Elizabeth Caywood was worthy Matron.

Anyone who wanted their name embroidered on the quilt could do so at a cost of 10 cents. The quilt went on display in Mr. Veach's window. Later in years, the quilt top was somehow misplaced and remained missing until last summer when it was re-discovered and completed as per its original design.
