Children waiting for home

Nearly 300 special needs children are waiting for their birth right: a safe, loving family. For many of them, their special need is simply being older or being in a sibling group. Many people don't realize older children and sibling groups can be successfully adopted. While these children's personalities are formed, they still need and want your guidance and love. Remember, family is forever. The Department for Social Services can provide training, support services and financial assistance. Please call Marie Halpin at 289-7123 at the Cabinet for Human Resources Department for Social Services.

"Why do you lie?" Ramon (8/4-4-84) asked his sister, Latoshia (8/2-16-82), after she claimed she could "eat pizza all day long." Latoshia insisted she could. Ramon, who is proud he can turn his eyelids inside out and is not about to be outdone, countered his favorite food was "anything from KFC!" Believe it or not these two are known to bicker with each other. (The picture was posed). Actually, they need each other very much, but they'd never admit it.

Both children are healthy and sweet. Ramon is a fun loving laughing kid who is all boy. Latoshia is super sweet and very helpful around her foster home. Latoshia will be a fourth grader. She's had some trouble in school. She is to be tested for a learning disability but she also missed lots of school before entering foster care. Ramon will be a third grader. He doesn't like school but finally admitted he did like music...and PE...and science...and math... Both children appear to be intelligent.

Latoshia and Ramon will need time for the hurt to heal and your patience. Both have so much to offer.

Moorefield Homemakers meet

The Moorefield Homemakers met December 2, 1993 at the gaily decorated home of Wanda Mathes with Nancy Judge as co-hostess. Twelve members and two guests, Carolyn Hunt and Virginia Smith answered the roll by naming "A Christmas Gift that I Remember."

Alma Curtis, president, presided over a short business session. Lois Hamm read the minutes and gave the treasurers report. She also named the projects we had contributed to for Christmas.

The devotional this month was included in the Christmas program "Christmas Around the World." Frances House, Jane Moreland, and Janice Denton gave us information on customs of several countries: France, Germany, Ireland, Bulgaria, Italy, and others including the U.S.

We sang several Christmas carols, sang or listened to O Holy Night, Star of the East, Silver Bells, and Rudolph with Marjorie Wilson at the piano.

Delicious sandwiches, cookies and punch were served by the hostesses.

Open house held in depot

There was an Open House Sunday, November 28, 1993 at the Depot. Iva Sanders decorations were featured with Home Interiers, gifts and accessories.

There were lots of cash and carry gifts and Christmas gifts. All proceeds were for Eastern Star Marie Chapter 259.

Postal Service releases stamp

The United States Postal System released an AIDS awareness stamp as part of World AIDS awareness day, December 1.

The stamp of black, white and red construction went on sale December 1 and can now be purchased at all post offices.

the stamp design was done by Tom Mann of Warrenton, Virginia.

AIDS - acquired immune deficiency syndrome - has no known cure at this time.

This year's day of recognition was the sixth which has been observed.

Kentucky has had 1169 diagnosed cases of AIDS reported since 1982.

Of these, 747 died. In addition, there have been 1169 reports of Kentuckians testing positive for HIV.

Events across the area were held to highlight awareness of the killing disease.
