Whenever someone complains of a period of strenuous activity, whether it be a slump up a steep stairway or a physical workout, the person will tell you, "The body will find some rest."

Part of my physical making is the need for sleep. An adult will need about seven hours of sleep each night. This is so that the body will be able to take on the next day's activity. If one does not get enough sleep, a person will become tired and irritable. Sleep disorders exist. In the end, one's health could be damaged.

One needs rest in another way. We need to rest in the Lord. Jesus says, "Come to me, all you who are weary and find life here. My yoke will be easy and my burden light." (Matthew 11:28-30)

Many people are "restless." They need to find something to rest their souls on. Some will find rest in activity to make life meaningful. The void. Some will find rest in activity to make life meaningful. The void. Some will find rest in activity to make life meaningful. The void.
