SBDM Council

coaches should approach the board and find out what is going on," Greg Reid, high school principal, said.

According to several council members, they have been approached about the policy of state championships rings.

Michelle Hopkins, a member of the Nicholas County High School Track Team, won the state championship in the discus event at the state track meet held at University of Kentucky.

"I think she should be rewarded, but it is my understanding that the policy concerns teams only," Jim Simmons, council member, said.

"But individuals that work hard and win a state championship on their own deserve recognition too, and I think there is real prestige attached to the board buying the ring," Reid said.

The council then passed a motion to ask the board of education to reward Michelle Hopkins with a state championship ring.

"We have also been asked how much money we made off the girl's state tournament," Smoot said.

"What people don't realize is the Kentucky High School Athletics Association gets the money from the gate. We don't make a penny off the gate," Reid said.

"And we helped out with funds when the band and cheerleaders went."

The council also voted to resubmit a letter requesting materials for DNA and genetic research for the science laboratory.

"Kathy Green (biology teacher) said she felt the materials fit technology requirements. I don't know why this matter did not get on the agenda, but we can resubmit the request," Reid said.

The principal also briefed council members on several applicants which have applied for the position of chemistry and physics teacher following the resignation of Mr. Helm.

"Lisa Conn was interested in being the sponsor for the boys' varsity cheerleaders and is interested in someday coaching girls' basketball," Reid said.

She played basketball at Morehead State University, plans to move to Fleming County and can teach everything in this area except physics."

Other applicants included Timothy Giles, Jeff Smith, Travis Hubert and Wayne McKinley.

"John Gagle, a teacher from the Woodbridge Academy, also applied. He could teach chemistry, biology and physics. He comes highly recommended," Reid said.

"All the interviews went really well. I would like to give first year teachers a classroom and have one of the veteran teachers float, but with our shortage of classrooms we will have to wait and see what the situation is," Reid said.

The council further discussed the problem of classroom area availability.

"The board of education is supposed to go to Frankfort at some point to discuss either adding new classrooms, restructuring or building a new high school with the building authorities there so they can see what the options are and what funds are available," John Caswell, council member, said.

Site-based council decided it would be a good idea to travel with the board to Frankfort when the date was set.

Copies of the expenditures and deposits to the general and athletic funds were given to the council.

"This print out was made by Brenda Day. Because of her efforts you can see every little exchange that went on in both funds," Reid said.

No questions or inquiries were made into expenditures on both funds and the council made a motion to adjourn.

The next meeting of the high school site-based council will be held August 2 in the high school library at 7 p.m.

Garvey Curtsinger, water commissioner, also explained to all customers in attendance that they would receive refunds on their deposits if water lines could not be run to their homes in Phase III of the construction.

Auditors for the water board, Tim Eldridge and Jeff Newman, were also present to recommend some changes in accounting procedures to make the system run better.

The next meeting of the Nicholas County Water District will be August 12 at 7 p.m.

Kids' College to begin classes July 26

By Heather Mathes Harris
Of The Carlisle Mercury Staff

CARLISLE - Kids' College, an academic enrichment program operated through the University of Kentucky and Maysville Community College, will be held July 26-30 at Nicholas County High School from 8:30-12:30.

"Children are really excited about summer vacation, but after a while they get bored, the days get longer and harder to fill. Finding worthwhile activities get difficult for parents as well as children," Paula Hunter program organizer said.

"Harrison County is putting on a Kids' College program and I wanted to enroll my child in it. When I was over there I said I wished Nicholas County had this kind of program for education.

I was told I should look into starting one, so I got with other interested parents and I along with Debbie Hutchinson and Kaye Karlgwine put it together," Hunter said.

Children may choose three classes and give an alternate choice in case the class is filled. Classes are filled on a first come basis.

A maximum of 50 students have been accepted at a cost of $35 per student.

"Ten scholarships were given to academically above-average students. Elementary teachers chose two children, boys and girls, on each grade level on the basis of their school record and proven ability to benefit from the program," Hunter said.

"The scholarships were sponsored by local citizens and businesses with a special interest in rewarding boys and girls for excellent work in school."

According to Hunter, response to this summer educational program has been tremendous.

"The feedback from parents and children was incredible. On the first morning of registration (June 1) 46 kids enrolled. The next day we had spots for four children. We put a lot on a waiting list as alternates just in case one of the children enrolled could not come," Hunter concluded.

A graduation exercise will be held and certificates will be given to those students who complete a full week of sessions.

For safety measures early dismissal of a student will only be allowed to a parent with verified Social Security number.

All activities will be supervised.

For more information on the Kids' College contact Paula Hunter at 289-7332 or Debbie Hutchinson at 289-2444.

Other classes children may choose from include Computers, Productions, Introduction to Television and Recreational Games.

Children are asked to choose three classes and give an alternate choice in case the class is filled. Classes are filled on a first come basis.

Joe B. Hall, former University of Kentucky Basketball coach and spokesperson for CATS, entertain the visitors at the Blackberry Festival July 1. Hall rode in one of CATS' vans during the parade.

CATS awards b - balls signed by Hall

CARLISLE- Beatrice Booth and Justin Kenney are glad they visited Community Action Transit System's (CATS) booth at the Blackberry Festival in Carlisle last week.

Booth and Kenney were the recipients of new basketballs autographed by former University of Kentucky Basketball Coach Joe B. Hall.

Their names were randomly selected after they registered at the CATS booth.

Booth will keep his ball and display it in her great-granddaughter, former Lady Jackets guard Nikki Smoot.

Kenney, a fourth grader at Nicholas County Elementary School, will keep his ball and display it in his room. Kenney is the son of Jackie and Tina Kenney.

CATS services residents of Nicholas County, as well as residents of Bath, Bourbon, Harrison, Montgomery, Menifee, Morgan and Rowan Counties.

Anyone in these counties who is in need of a ride can call CATS toll-free at 1-800-548-CATS (2287) or 289-7172 to have round trip, door-to-door transportation arranged for them, often for less than the price of a cab ride.

Coach Hall will be making personal appearances in each of the eight counties to help raise awareness of CATS' services.

CATS had a fleet of air-conditioned vans and minibuses, some of which are equipped with wheelchair lifts.

A well-trained staff and modern vehicles help CATS insure the safety and comfort of all passengers.
