

Babbage discusses voter registration

Voter registration books are now in the Nicholas County Clerk's office, Secretary of State Bob Babbage announced. Citizens may register in Kentucky as being re-registered in 1993 general election and the served. Babbage said. In the period between the 1992 and 1993 general elections registered to vote in 1992.

1988 general election and the 1993 primary election registration increased by 89,229. In the same period, Babbage said, the number of registered voters increased by 89,229. In the same period, Babbage said, the number of registered voters increased by 89,229.

In 1993 another record was set in Kentucky when 2,160,132 were registered to vote.

"With the interest in local races and the renewed interest in participating in the democratic process, it is likely we will see another registration record by the end of this year," Babbage said.
