The fire had turned into a smoldering pile of ash by Tuesday afternoon. If it had continued to burn, however, a water advisory may have been announced for the area

"If the wind blows, I don't know what it would do," she said. The fire department and the fire company covered the street in front of her house, and informed her and her husband

The big news this week is, of course, the huge fire fire that took place in Billville. This fire brings up several points that urgently need to be addressed.

Disasters like the one that caught fire are scattered throughout Kentucky and the United States, even the world. These present a great hazard, both to those who live close
