Letters To The Editor

I think it was Virginia Wolfe who said you could never go home. She must not have been from Carlisle. For the most part, people have been friendly and receptive.

MERCURY VAPORS

Modern equipment and people with the know-how, had us ready to return to Carlisle shortly before 1 o'clock with 2100 copies of the Mercury. We were asked to load the cans from a conveyor just a few feet from the folding device on the press. Another fast ten minutes were spent gathering up literature and securing can lids.

Letters To The Editor

I know about this kind of worry since my husband had off presently. But with the new presidential administration working on the saving economy nationally and Nicholas County's own industrial committees striving to put new industry into Carlisle, it's looking like a new day is ready.

Finally I'm back in another home and as I sit here tonight and write their every thing I see a gift of love from a post holder to a towel to everything piece of clothing we own, to the shoes on my feet, it's a feeling of love I've never known before.
