Deer hunters advised to check out new laws

Thousands of Kentucky deer hunters will lead to the woods Saturday, November 13, 1993 for opening day of modern deer hunting. Before opening day arrives, however, hunters should take time to familiarize themselves with the changes in deer hunting laws for 1993. This change was made based on the fact that these firearms are effective for taking deer, and that there are some already legal firearms for deer hunting that are smaller calibers than the 410 or 28-gauge. For modern handgun hunters, the 30 minimum caliber rifle is still required. However, this means all centerfire handguns (or rifles) will be legal for hunting. Centerfire means guns that fire cartridges by the firing pin striking the center of the end of the cartridge case. During November 13-17, 1993, hunters are advised to check out the new laws and regulations in effect for modern deer hunting equipment. It is essential to proper management of the herd. Landowners this year will also not be required to tag deer they harvest from their property unless removed from their property.

Carlisle Eye Care Center
A Comment on Loving Doctors and Their Staff
By Daisy Crump
I just went to Dr. Pretzsch for an eye exam, thinking I needed my glasses changed. I was almost completely blind in my left eye. In his concern, he had Lexington and put me to rest with Commonwealth Eye Service.
