Businessmen, politicians do things they shouldn't. That's true. They are, after all, only human. There are times, though, that politicians do things that any thinking human being would not even consider.

Take Governor Brewster C. Jones' recent defense of his businessman Carl H. Lindner, Jr. Lindner is CEO of the company that owns Great Cable Corporation, a company that has a plant in Lawrenceburg. According to the Lexington Herald-Leader, General Cable recently laid off over 20 workers at the Lawrenceburg location. But enough, you say? Hold on!

Governor Jones then used $10,000 in state funds to take an ad in the Cincinnati Enquirer to defend the workers. Lindner is a lobbyist, and Lindner is a lobbyist, and Lindner is a lobbyist. Maybe someone can help me out here, why would any governor defend anyone who lays off workers in his state? First, it's very insensitive to those workers who were put on the street. It's like saying to them "Yes, you are out of work, but Mr. Lindner is a really nice guy." Lindner may well be a nice guy, and he may deserve a spiritual bonus, but is it Governor Jones' place to defend him? I think not.

It is not a labor union, but if the governor won't stand up for Kentucky workers, who will? Companies sometimes are forced to lay off workers; that's just a fact of economic life. But to defend this action by spending thousands of tax dollars, that's just a slap in the face for all taxpayers in Kentucky.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

My mother-in-law, Nora K. Vice, will be on November 7, 1993 and I was wondering who the oldest man or woman is in Nicholas County.
I saw Mrs. Vice in one of the oldest. I would appreciate anyone who knows someone older to either inform me or the Mirror.
Yours very truly,
E.C. Plura

Quality Eye Care Is #1
Robert F. Pretzsch, O.D.
SUCCESS STORY: When Debbie first referred me, I was a little afraid. The eye specialist I went to in the past was a little nightmare. I went in one year, and that was all. They wouldn't take the time and explain if my eyes were getting better or worse, or what I could do about it. I was in their office for 10 or 15 minutes at the most. Here at Cynthiana Vision Center, they take the time to talk to you, and explain if your eyes are getting better or worse, and what you can do about your condition. They really care for their patients. I'm really glad I was told about this place and I'm glad I decided to make the switch. The doctors and staff are wonderful!
