Jefferson and congregation extend a warm welcome to everyone to attend these special revival services.

There will be special singing each night and on Sunday, a potluck dinner will be served and that night, April 17, will be the final night.

Members agreed there would be complications in deciding which areas to cut from the project.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Nicholas County Water Board is 7 p.m. Thursday, April 17.

Water lines must be in place before the water storage tank, Curtin said, so it is possible to re-do just for the water storage tank if that's what members decided.

Besides having the board and Brown meet, another step in the process of getting ground broken for the water project is for the Howard K. Bell representatives to make a recent memorandum to the water board.

Then, Rural Development Administration would have to approve the plan.
