COURT

Stacy said he'd always thought the bridge belonged to the road. The owner of the bridge will have to decide if he is the case of who will repair the bridge in the future. TT has done no work on the bridge through the years.

All members of the court were in attendance including Stacy, Juanita Smith, Melvin Poyam, Danny Hughes, Avery D. Thornburg, and County Attorney Jack Conley. County Treasurer Wanda Dotson, County Clerk Doug Fryman, and County Judge Executive Charles Smith. Approximately 22 people were in attendance.

The court voted to close the rock quarry as of July 1. Rock will be stockpiled and available until then. The quarry's rock supply has been dwindling for some time.

Several issues were discussed with no action taken. A meeting of 4 p.m. April 28 was set for the court to meet to discuss bridge and banking bids.

Gray Wilco's Deposit Bank of Carlisle and Lannin Hutchison of First National Bank of Lexington are both giving banking bids for the county's funds. Dotson said she would appreciate time to look the bids over and talk with the court at the April 28 meeting.

"We've received attractive offers from each one. It's just that we need time in deciding what's best for the county," Dotson said.

The court also passed on the ambulance service bid. The bid was received from Ronald McDonald for one year in the amount of $98,000.

The bid was for $98,450 beginning July 2, 1994. Last year the cost according to Dotson was approximately $72,000. Stacy said two years ago the service cost $24,000.

Hughes commented that Ronald McDonald offers very good ambulance service but that increasing costs were a major concern. The court agreed to further discuss the ambulance issue at the next meeting.

Babbage discusses registration

Nicholas County voters who are 17 years old can register and vote in the May primary election if they will be 18 on or by the date of the November election," Secretary of State Bob Babbage said.

He said that has about 54,000 persons who will turn 18 this year. Many will be eligible to register and vote in this year's primary and general elections," he added.

Babbage noted that the passage of the National Voting Information Act of 1993 which will make voter registration available when a person applies for a driver's license will add about 500,000 registered voters in a four-year span.

At the time of the last general election, voter registration in Kentucky had fallen to 2,125,251. New laws to expand the registration opportunity will certainly help Kentucky "rebuild its democracy," Babbage said.

Other acts, including state offices which offer assistance programs, and military recruiting stations will also be voter registration in the future, according to the federal law. Kentucky law directs county clerks to assist public high schools with voter registration opportunities for their students. In many areas the clerk provides voter registration cards for the students' use to the school principal or the designated school official who informs the Incumbent Supreme Court Justice Joseph Lambert is seeking reelection to the court's district. Three candidates are seeking election to the Court of Appeals seventh district seat. Races will also be held for Circuit Judge in three judicial districts and the office of district judge in the 16th district will also be on the ballot this year.
