Humorist/Musician Richard "Dick" Albin

Albin to perform at dinner

Humorist and storyteller Dick "Richard" Albin will speak for the C.H.S. Alumni dinner on August 6, 1994. The dinner is being held at Nicholas County Elementary and will begin at 6:00 p.m.

"I was raised in Arkansas," Albin explains. "Everything after that has been a cross cultural experience."

Albin has performed all over America, in Europe and the Mediterranean countries. He draws much of his comedy from his travels.

"I once tried to order a meal in Germany and wound up asking for a dog," he says. "The waitress asked if I wanted a small dog or a large dog; so, I told wanting a biting and snapping dog. She brought me a hot dog that looked like an old gray weenie."

He has recorded a number of albums. (One of his comic songs went to number 40 on the Independent County music charts.) He has spoken for groups as diverse as the Southern Ohio Gerontology Association and Tyson Pride's management meeting.

Please Note

Drs. Riggs and Sparks will be out of the office from July 15 until July 26. Dr. Pam Stein will be in the office July 21 and July 25.

Church Corner

The following is an article written by a local church official, and does not necessarily reflect the views or opinions held by The Carlisle Mercury or Park Communications, Inc.

By Dr. B. Kent Duke
First Christian Church
Matthew 13:44

"The Kingdom of Heaven is like a treasure which lay hidden in a field. A man found it, and hid it; and, as a result of his joy, away he goes, and sells everything that he has, and buys the field."

Although this parable sounds strange and unusual to us, it would sound perfectly natural to people in Palestine in the days of Jesus, and even to this day it would pain a picture which people in the East would know well.

In the ancient world there were banks, but not banks such as ordinary people could use. People in ordinary everyday practice used the ground as the safest place to keep their most cherished belonging. In the parable of the talents the unprofitable servant hid his talent in the ground, lest he should lose it (Matthew 25/25). There was a rabbinic saying that there was only one safe repository for money—the earth. This was still more the case in a land where any man's garden might at any time become a battlefield. Palestine is probably the most fought over country in the world; and, when the tide of war threatened to flow over them and engulf them, it was commo practice for people to hide their valuables in the ground, before they took to flight, in the hope that the day would come when they could return and regain them. Josephus speaks of "the gold and the silver and the rest of that most precious furniture which the Jews had, and which the owners treasured up underground against the uncertain fortunes of war."

The point of this parable is, first, that the man found the precious thing, not so much by chance, as in his day's work. It is true to say that he stumbled all unexpectedly upon it, but he did so when he was going about his daily business. And it is legitimate to infer that he must have been going about his daily business with diligence and efficiency, because he must have been digging deep, and not merely scraping the surface, in order to strike against the treasure. It would be a sad thing, if it were only in churches, in so-called holy places, and on so-called religious occasions that we found God, and felt close to Him. There is an unwritten saying of Jesus, a saying which never found its way into any of the gospels, but which rings true: "Raise the stone and thou shalt find me; cleave the wood and I am there." When the mason is working on the stone, when the carpenter is working with the wood, Jesus Christ is there. True happiness, true satisfaction, the sense of God, the presence of Christ Himself are all to be found in the day's work, when that day's wok is honestly and conscientiously done. Brother Lawrence, the great saint and mystic, spent much of his working life in the monastery kitchen amidst the dirty dishes, and he could say, "I felt Jesus Christ as close to me in the kitchen as ever I did at the blessed sacrament." The lesson of this parable is, second, that it is worth any sacrifice to enter the Kingdom. What does it mean to enter the Kingdom? Let us remember that when we were studying the Lord's Prayer (Matthew 6:10) we found that we could say that the Kingdom of God is a state of society upon earth where God's will is as perfectly done as it is in heaven. Therefore to be in the Kingdom, to enter the Kingdom, is to accept and to do God's will. So, then, it is worth anything to do God's will. Suddenly, as the man discovered the treasure, there may flash upon us in some moment of illumination the conviction of what God's will is for us. To accept it may be to give up certain aims and ambitions which were very dear, to abandon certain habits and ways of life which are very difficult to lay down, to accept a discipline and a self-denial which are by no means easy, in a word, to take up our cross and follow after Jesus. But there is no other way to peace of mind and heart in this life and to glory in the life to come. It is indeed worth giving up everything to accept and to do the will of God.

Medigap Choices: It's All Service These Days

(NU) - Since Congress changed the face of Medigap plans, choosing between benefits has become a lot easier. All companies have to offer the same "standardized" Medicare supplements to eligible consumers.

Sure, some companies choose to offer only a couple of plans, but these are identical in benefits to the next company's plans. The only difference is the price you pay. Right?

It's not that easy. Standardization has opened up a whole new set of choices for the Medigap purchaser.

It's all service these days. The price you pay for the coverage is still important, but narrow it down to a reasonably priced few, and it becomes your decision maker. A quick look at their brochure will tell you what services are available. Here are some of the "extras" that companies offer.

The bank draft service can be used to have the company withdraw your payment on a certain day of every month. With this, you eliminate writing out a check for health insurance when paying the bills. Plus, you save on the postage. You also may find a company that allows you to use a credit card to make your insurance payments.

The last thing you want to do after spending time in the hospital or seeing your doctor is prepare lots of paperwork to have your claims paid. Some companies have you use simple claim procedures so you don't get bogged down while others offer automatic claim filing. This process is done through your provider (doctor, hospital, etc.) and you really shouldn't have to worry about the hassle.

The flexibility of a company to meet your needs is important. Take things like alternate or third-party payers. If you want, or need, someone else to handle your account or just help you keep track of your coverage, your company should be able to prepare any information for the forms you choose, as well as yourself.

There are numerous things that a company can provide to you as a part of your supplemental coverage. Price is a big factor, but when it comes to the final choice, service cannot be overlooked.

Guard breaks 1 million

(Frankfort) Kentucky Adjutant General Robert L. DeZarn announced that the Kentucky National Guard's Easter Seal drive has successfully raised $103,104.09 for 1994. This year's total takes the Kentucky Guard's "Bucket Brigade" over the two million dollar mark in total contributions since 1972.

Volunteers from Army and Air National guard units across the state operated collection points in their communities during March and April to raise money. A total of 859 guardsmen and women volunteered to collect in over 48 localities in Kentucky. The top fundraising unit, 130th Maintenance Company in Walton, raised $8,520.21 with 29 volunteers.

According to Major General DeZarn, "The Kentucky Guard's 'Bucket Brigade' took us over the two million dollar mark in total contributions, and I'm very proud of this accomplishment. Our soldiers and airmen have never hesitated to do the right thing, especially when it comes to helping Kentucky's disabled children and adults."

He also praised those who helped in this year's effort and said, "We in the Guard have always depended on our families to support us in everything we do, and the Easter Seals drive is no exception. Without the valuable time and assistance given by these wives and husbands, sons and daughters, we could not have reached this important milestone."

Since 1972, the National Guard has been collecting for the Easter Seals through the "Bucket Brigade". Of the funds collected for Easter Seals, 91% stay in Kentucky and over 80% go to direct programs and services in Kentucky. Over 25,000 children and adults with disabilities in the commonwealth receive Easter Seal services.

Adjutant General DeZarn added that the Kentucky Guard was already making plans for next year's effort. "We're hoping to do even better next time around by building on the momentum we've set with this year's effort. Times are tough for a lot of people out there, but with a few new ideas and, of course, a lot of hard work, we intend to get more Kentuckians than ever to contribute to this worthy and honorable cause."

Deadline nears for registration

"Now is the time for youth ages 9 years old through 13 years old in Nicholas County to sign up for 4-H Camp," says Nicholas County Extension Agents, Melba Burch and Mike Phillips.
