800 Natural Gas Filling Stations Provide Low-Cost, Clean Fuel

(NAPS)—The next time you drive into a filling station, you may find a different kind of "gas" for sale. More than 800 natural gas filling stations are now operating in the United States, according to the American Gas Association, with an average of five new facilities opening every week.

Natural gas offers a cleaner, lower-cost alternative to gasoline, A.G.A. says, selling for an average of 70 cents for the energy equivalent of a gallon of gasoline. Natural gas also reduces carbon monoxide emissions by up to 90 percent and reactive hydrocarbons, which create smog, by 85 percent, the association says.

Cars, vans, trucks, and buses can be converted to run on natural gas by replacing their existing fueling system, and federal tax incentives are now available to offset the cost of converting. Deductions range from $2,000 for a passenger car to $50,000 for trucks over 26,000 pounds or buses that carry 20 or more passengers, A.G.A. says. Companies building natural gas refueling facilities also are eligible for a deduction of up to $100,000. A.G.A. estimates that a passenger sedan conversion costs about $2,500.

In addition, all three U.S. automobile manufacturers plan to produce natural gas cars and trucks in 1994, according to the association. Including the factory-built natural gas vehicles and the converted vehicles, A.G.A. expects about four million natural gas vehicles on the road by the turn of the century.

Court officials attend legislative update meeting

Sally Watkins, Billy Hatfield, Judge Robert W. McGinnis, and Judge Wayne McGee, Court of Justice officials from Nicholas, Harrison, Pendleton, and Robertson Counties participated in a recent regional legislative update meeting.

The regional legislative update is designed to provide all employees of the Court of Justice with an opportunity to ask questions and discuss recent legislation passed by the Kentucky General Assembly.

Mr. Don Cetrulo, Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, opened the one-day session with a report on the 1994-96 Court of Justice budget. Specifically, Mr. Cetrulo addressed the Judicial Branch budget for the next two years, including salaries and health care reform for elected and appointed officials.

Following Mr. Cetrulo's remarks, attenders separated into groups, determined by profession. Judges met to discuss the recently-passed legislation and its impact on the court system. The discussion leaders for the judges' group included one circuit and one district judge, both of whom were experienced instructors and had received specific training for the regional meetings.

Circuit clerks, deputy clerks, and judicial secretaries met with Ms. Cicely Lambert, General Counsel to the Administrative Office of the Courts, who reviewed the Court of Justice Sexual Harassment Policies. The employees identified the types of behavior which may constitute sexual harassment and what procedures should be followed if sexual harassment occurs. Circuit and deputy clerks also met with Ms. D.J. Simpson, AOC field services representative, and discussed new legislation and its effect on circuit clerks office procedures.

Court designated workers and pretrial officers also met to discuss the effects of implementation of recent legislation. The CDW meeting was conducted by AOC's juvenile services staff, while pretrial officers met with AOC's Pretrial staff.

The regional Legislative updates were sponsored and conducted by the Administrative Office of the Courts' education services department, with special support from the departments of legal services and field services.

RC&D receives $6,000 grant

Mark Matuszewski, Director of the Kentucky Division of Forestry, sent word in mid-May that $6,000 in forestry grants were awarded to the Licking River Valley Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Council. John Hunt, President of the RC&D Council, announced that the grants would be used for 2 projects. One will be a unique pamphlet that focuses on Redcedar/Pine Tree Management and warm season forages. A brochure pertaining to warm season forage management and cedar tree management will be produced. A team consisting of CES, RC&D, KDF, and SCS has initiated this endeavor to highlight the opportunity for local farmers to realize increased profits by converting fescue/hay overgrown pastures to redcedar/pine production and incorporating warm season forages in their cattle operations.

The second project will be a Strategic Planning Initiative for Forest Resources in the 8-county RC&D area. A series of 2 or more conferences will be held to compose a strategic plan for forest and related resources and committee will be formed to implement the plan. Leading forest industry leaders will speak at the conferences to aid in the process and help bring focus to the effort. the projects committee for these endeavors will be Glen Abney, Soil Conservation Service, Grant Curry, Kentucky Division of Forestry, Mark Leopold, Robertson County Cooperative Extension, and Tom Leith, Licking River Valley RC&D Council. Anyone who is interested in assisting in these projects may contact any one of the 4 current committee members. Their phone numbers are as follows: Glen Abney, 234-3364, Grant Curry, 784-7504, Mark Leopold, 724-5796, or Tom Leith, 234-3552.
