added that Everly's endeavor to further strengthen the curriculum will be a move in the right direction. "I think we need to put more emphasis on the curriculum because our test scores are slipping in certain areas," Dale said.

Board member David Smoot commented of the Everly's, "They're fine people."

Then, wanting to have some fun, Smoot added "I thought Mr. Everly looked like Jr. Ball. He does like basketball. He used to coach. And he's kin to the Everly Brothers and he can sing. You've heard of the Everly Brothers. But you want a serious answer. He's really strong in KERA."

Board Chairman Louise Zachary said, "I think they're a couple who will fit into the school and community. I think they will bring a lot of wisdom with them."

Everly's wife, Jan, commented, "He was a teacher and a coach and he loves basketball. He's worked at about every level. He left coaching for administration."

Being a school superintendent has always been a goal of Everly, said his wife. "This is something he's always wanted to do."

The Fulton County Schools, where Everly held the assistant superintendent position for a year, have about 1,000 students.

Everly said he'd toured both schools and would work with the board on possible improvements. He couldn't say at this point whether the construction of a new high school would be one of his main projects. "You've got to balance what the kids need with what the community can supply. The means have to justify the ends."

An educator with 28 years of experience, he said "I'll be involved with the teachers and the kids. Don't be surprised if you come to see me and I'm in the classroom with some kids."

According to Everly, one of the things he finds the most difficult is talking about himself. But he was full of praise for others. "Which questions asked by the screening committee were tough? They were all tough. They wanted to know about me and that's tough. It's hard for me to talk about myself. But I can talk about the people. The thing I heard from your board is 'We have a good staff. Teachers. Bus drivers. classified staff. No where in my 28 years have I heard a board say how proud they were of the entire school staff."

City council

and banking service to the city.

Proposals were received from Deposit Bank of Carlisle and First National Bank of Carlisle to act as the official depository for city accounts.

Both proposals were read aloud, and Clark told officials from both institutions that he would speak with the city's auditors, and would contact the officials at a later date.

Council accepted the bid from Hinkle Contracting of Paris to pave and patch city streets. Hinkle's bid came in at $34.75 per ton.

Clark read bids from PBS, Inc. of Georgetown and C.I. Thornsburg of Lexington for water plant chemicals.

"We will consult with our water plant manager about the prices of these chemicals," said Clark. "Then we will make a decision about which bid is the better of the two."

Council discussed the present cutoff fees for gas and water customers.

City attorney Skip Watson reminded council of the penalties for tampering with city utilities.

"If the city cuts off service for non-payment, and a customer turns it back on, that is prima facie evidence that they intend to commit theft of services," said Watson. "That's Class A misdemeanor, and if they use over $300, that's a Class D felony."

Council made no changes to the ordinance, and according to city clerk Mary Tapp, Watson will draft an ordinance with appropriate fees and present it to council at a later date.

Gayle Vanlandingham reminded council of the real reason for having fees in place to prevent tampering with city systems.

"The real point of having these fees is to keep people from tampering with the meters," said Vanlandingham. "Tampering with gas meters especially can be very dangerous. If someone manages to hook up gas after we take out the meter, that could introduce high-pressure natural gas into the house, and maybe cause an explosion."

Arrests

back to January.

No hard drugs such as cocaine were involved, Wuchner said. Cocaine would have been a first degree substance. Controlled substances could be drugs other than marijuana.

However, marijuana production and sale is a problem in Nicholas County, he stated. "Marijuana is a big problem nationwide, statewide and proportionately, in Nicholas County. The problem is real," Wuchner stated. "This is a popular growing area. I'd say Nicholas County has a big marijuana problem both in what's grown and in usage for us to go through this investigation.

We made no arrests in any other county."

Residents have been helpful to law enforcement, he added. The toll-free telephone number to call with crime information is 1-800-222-5555.

Coping with the drug problem locally takes a unified effort from everyone, Wuchner said. "There is a problem and we're doing what we can."

Officers involved in the investigation included Trooper Tim Layne and Kenneth Jones from Nicholas County, Trooper Clinton Graves from Bourbon County, and Trooper Cindy Langer. Others from Post 6 included Trooper Joseph Johnson, Greg Simmons, Jan Wuchner, Sgt. Dale Cross, Detective Ron Harrison, Det. Rodney Harrison, Det. Rodney Ballard and Captain Charles Johnson and Lt. Terry Evans.
