Nicholas County Elementary Principal Gerald Hammons said of Dillon's achievement, "The kids have spoken. It's what the kids feel that counts. She's a fantastic teacher."

"His kids fun into it," added NCHS junior Todd Cook.
"His no boring," McGlothin commented.

Skaggs
Law cost child care is something shd like to initiate.
As for the gun control issue, Skaggs is clear. "I'm not for gun control. They've tried to combine and gun control together. They're two different issues. Crime needs to be addressed by our judicial system and police. Gun control is different."

Skaggs has attended Ashland Community College, Morehead State University and Ohio University.
Her husband, Jack, is a middle school teacher at Nicholas County Elementary and a member of the school's Site Based Decision Making Council.

Dana Livingston, a NCHS junior, nominated Massie for the honor. Livingston liked Massie's classes and teaching technique. "I had her as a teacher in 10th grade typing and I just liked her. She's real nice."

Massie, whose college major was business, minored in physical education. In her leisure time, she likes to play tennis. She was the choir director at a church in Paris for 22 years. "I was just filling in until they got somebody else."

For the past couple of years, she's been the pianist for Millersburg Baptist. "I hope to continue in the music area. I don't think I'd ever give up playing the piano. I may go back to giving lessons."

The Massies are the parents of the late Ron Massie, Rick Massie, employed at the YMCA in Paris and former pro-ball player for the Brackets for five years, and Bob Massie, a teacher and coach at Paris High School.
