MANAGING YOUR MONEY Trusts: A Smart Alternative To Wills If you're like most Americans, you've probably always thought trusts were only for the rich and wealthy.

What's wrong with wills? Ageing you to the bank, they're expensive and inefficient. You expect and know that you will die, but you don't know when you will die.

What is a Living Trust? Basically, the author says, it's a written instrument that lets you have your property the way you see fit, trust for a market value, beneficiaries, your spouse, your children, a favorite charity, etc. and a trustee who will carry out the maker's wishes.

The book, written in clear, straightforward language, explains what it is and the dangers inherent in wills and conventional substitutes and shows how an easy-to-use estate alternative can provide for the future of the loved ones of people at any economic level.

Parents pledge support to Coach O'Hearn and district

Editor's Note: The following article was composed by parents in the Carlsile community and reprinted from the Carlsile Mercury. The Carlsile Mercury is a weekly newspaper published in Carlsile, KY.

As the parents of the boys Junior Varsity and Varsity basketball players, we would like to go forward with a statement of support for Coach Chris O'Hearn.

As a person and a Coach, Coach O'Hearn exhibits all the qualities and characteristics any parent should want his child to have.

Coach O'Hearn stresses the need for academic achievement as well as athletic achievement.

His reputation among his peers as a coach and a person speaks for itself. He is well thought of among his former college coaches.

As parents of the basketball team, we recognize the importance of the season we're beginning to join.

Another obstacle facing not only the basketball team but other extracurricular activities as well, is the number of students in the school.

The lack of school facilities and the number of kids using them during the basketball season also has an impact on the basketball program.
