The Carlisle Fire Department answered a call at 11 p.m. Saturday to the rest room in the basement of bob goodman house.

The window sills had been freshly painted and it was thought that a spark from a cigarette stub may have started the fire on the outside, although heavy smoke came from the large entrace doors.

The damage was slight.

The fire engine, located only a few yards from the rear of the courthouse, was not taken to the scene. District 4-H and FFA youths Friday sold 105,120 pounds of burley at their Cynthiana show and sale for a total of $63,637.08, an average of $60.54 a hundred-weight.

Reaching her side he found her almost overcome by the escaping fumes. He had not been feeling well. Wrapping her quickly in a blanket he carried her to the car and drove around in the fresh air, then took her to the home of her mother, Mrs. W.G.P. Ledford, where she remained to recover. She was able to be on the street Tuesday, showing little or no sign of the harrowing experience.

Bunning asks Congress for troop support

The following letter is printed with permission with 4th District Congressman Jim Bunning. The letter was sent to his fellow members of Congress, asking for U.S. troop support and troop tax breaks for combat zones.

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C. 20515-1704

Dec. 14, 1995

Dear Colleague:

By order of President Clinton, thousand of U. S. military personnel are being sent to Bosnia to undertake an extremely hazardous mission. Personally, I do not support the idea of sending U. S. troops to Bosnia - but regardless of our views on this issue, we still must demonstrates our support for our troops.

Due to the fact that Mr. Clinton continues to view Operation Joint Endeavor as a peacekeeping mission and will not declare Bosnia a "combat Zone" thousands of U. S. military personnel will lose tax benefits otherwise available to them while serving in a combat zone.

"Regardless of our views on this issue, we still must demonstrate our support for our troops."

Specifically, Sections 112, 692, 2201, and 7508 of the U. S. Tax Code, provide tax relief to military personnel and their families, who participate in a military operation within a designated area listed as a "combat zone."

While you may not recall the names of Master Sergeant Gary Gordon and Sergeant First Class Randall Shughart, they earned the Congressional Medal of Honor in Somalia for giving their lives while protecting their comrades. However, since President Clinton never declared the Somalia field of operation a "combat zone" their families and those of other Rangers killed cannot receive the tax benefits bestowed to the families of military personnel who are killed in action. This is not fair and Congress needs to prevent this same tragedy from occurring again.

With American troops facing the dangers of millions of land mines, ground to air missiles and thousands of mercenaries who are paid to kill, I don't think anyone can deny that this is a combat zone. By co-sponsoring my bill you will demonstrate your support for our troops ad provide them with the assurance that their families' financial needs will be met.

If you would like to co-sponsor H. R. 2778, please call Mike Haywood of my staff at 5-3465.

Best personal regards,
Jim Bunning

FRANKFORT - The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission approved several new actions affecting hunting and fishing sports for the next year.

The rabbit and quail season will change for 29 counties in Western Kentucky in the fall of 1996. Next year's season for rabbit and quail will begin the day following the close of modern gun deer season and continue through January 31 in the following counties: Allen, Ballard, Butler, Caldwell, Calloway, Carlisle, Christian, Crittenden, Daviess, Fulton, Graves, Hancock, Henderson, Hickman, Hopkins, Livingston, Logan, Lyon, Marshall, McCracken, Mcclean, Muhlenberg, Ohio, Simpson, Todd, Trigg, Union, Warren and Webster. The season in these counties was changed to permit farmers in West Kentucky to harvest their crops before the season opened.

No changes in the rabbit and quail season were made elsewhere. Hunting for these species will be open Nov. 1 through the end of January, except during the modern gun deer season in the remaining counties.

The commission amended the regulation controlling private boat docks on state-owned lakes to provide for waivers, hearings and appeals.

The Department was directed to produce a migratory bird permit. This federal permit will be required for migratory bird hunters (dove, woodcock, crow, etc.) not possessing a waterfowl stamp. During Christmas and New Year's last year, nine (three during Christmas, six during New Year's), of the 16 killed were not wearing seatbelts an four were completely or partially ejected from their vehicles. Buckling your safety belt and placing all young children in federally-approved child safety restraints are two of the best preventative measures you can take when out on the road - and both are enforced by law in Kentucky. Motorists can be fined up to $50 if children, 40 inches and under, are not placed in a safety seat. The safety belt law, which is a secondary offense, carries a penalty of up to $25 if a motorist is not buckled up. Drivers can also be cited if none of their passengers are wearing safety restraints.

Lt. Col. Sturgill also reminds motorists to allow plenty of travel time to get where they're going so "they don't feel pressure to go over the seed limit" and make sure vehicles are in good running order for the winter months.

Helpful Tips And Fascinating Facts From The Coffee Information Bureau

New And Brewing

(NAPS)—Here's refreshing news: a free brochure is available to help you make the best cup of coffee you can. Titled Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Coffee, it's an informative, 14-page color brochure, illustrated with photographs and original artwork. It was created to meet the tremendous interest in coffee today, and to provide consumers with concise and useful information to help them enjoy the many different coffees available.

The booklet not only traces the fascinating story of a beverage whose mysterious origins began more than a thousand years ago; it also explains, step-by-step, how to make a great cup of coffee. Useful suggestions on storing beans, as well as recipes for beverages and desserts and suggestions for dieters are also featured. A coupon to save on an Eight O'Clock Bean Coffee purchase is included, along with an offer for Collector's Edition mugs.

How do you make the best cup of coffee? According to Paul Gallant, President of Eight O'Clock Coffee, you start with the best beans—Arabica. "Coffee is perishable," he added. "Buy beans in airtight vacuum-sealed valve bags. Once the bag is opened, use the beans within two weeks or store them in an airtight container in the freezer."

When brewing coffee, start with fresh cold water and clean equipment. Use about two tablespoons of ground coffee for every six ounces of brewed coffee. Always use the proper grind for the equipment you're using, and try to serve the coffee immediately after you make it.

Here's a hot drink made with brewed coffee you might want to serve the next time you're in front of a fire on a cold winter evening.

Yet, most important is what's behind all these honors...the opinions of golfers who've played the Trail.....
