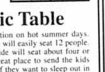
The Weekend Workshop
From The Creative Workshop Of: Edward A. Baldwin



Gazebo with Firepit and Picnic Table

Wanted: a truly unique back yard project that nobody else has. Found: a square gazebo that is easy to build and contains a barbecue pit in the center with a picnic table and benches built around it, too. This is a great poolside project. It also has a bar area that is just the right height for barstools and for serving anything that you wish. You can cook the meal and serve it at the same time. The cupola at the top allows for the smoke from the firepit to escape, as well as providing ventilation on hot summer days. The benches on the inside will easily seat 12 people. The bar area on the outside will seat about four or five people. It's also a great place to send the kids with their sleeping bags if they want to sleep out in the back yard. It is the ideal place for you and that special person to spend a moonlit evening. Seems to me I remember doing that once—I must be getting old.

You can copy this design or request plans to make it by specifying Project No. OS102PP and sending $8.95 plus $2.00 postage and handling to:

The Weekend Workshop
The Carlisle Mercury
Department 40351

For a bunch of 2x4 yard furniture designs to go with the gazebo, specify Plans Packet No. OS102PP and send $16.95 plus $3.00 postage and handling. For a catalog of over 250 projects, send $3.00.

Natasha's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You may be making changes in a home improvement plan. Pressing career matters could keep you from spending as much time as you'd like with family members. Make up for this over the weekend and lavish some attention on relatives.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're on the same wave length as a business partner and will accomplish much this week. However, you find it hard to get some people to understand your goals. Guard against any quarrels.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll be able to bring a career project to a successful conclusion. However, where money interests are concerned, there's an inclination to quarrel with your significant other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's one of those weeks when if you don't phone on time, a partner will become upset. Be sure to keep others abreast of your comings and goings. Doing so contributes much to peace.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) If a project is slow-going this week, try not to lose your temper. Not everyone is as quick-thinking as you. Later in the week, you feel a bit too busy and will welcome the weekend's chances for enjoyable quiet time.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You'll have a meaningful dialogue with a friend this week which leads to new career opportunities. However, some social plans are subject to last-minute changes. Someone you deal with is temperamental.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Being in two places at once is not your forte this week. Though matters pertaining to career will run smoothly, some home concerns may be left unattended. The weekend is a good time to catch up with this.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Though you're certain in your convictions, this week is not the best time for getting your viewpoints across to others. Stay clear of those who love to disagree. Such people are part of the problem, not the solution.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The week brings some positive business and financial developments. However, you could find yourself in a heated discussion about a mutual monetary concern. Family members provide solace.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your desire to do your own thing may not sit well with a close tie who would like to spend more time with you this week. Try to be more accommodating in order to avoid a messy quarrel. Compromise works.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) There could be a few false starts on the job this week but a project will get off the ground by week's end. It's possible that you'll be asked to put in extra hours over the weekend as a result. This pays off.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Though it's a busy time for you on the social scene now, the week is not without its dissatisfactions. A friend could prove to be a bit overbearing and opinionated. Avoid this person for now.

Dear Abby

Siblings Drafted to Baby-Sit Often Serve With Resentment

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I agree with you that, traditionally, older children have been expected to look after their younger siblings — as well as shovel snow, mow the lawn and rake the leaves. However, just because it's traditional doesn't make it right. It's not fair to the older child.

My husband has been involved with a teen youth group for many years. Meetings are held on Friday nights. All too often, a youngster will phone my husband on Friday night and say, "Sorry, I can't make it tonight. I have to baby-sit my little brother (or sister)."

Abby, it is very unfair to the teen-agers. The parents just assume that their own plans are more important than their children's. Naturally, the kids end up being resentful.

A SCOUTER'S WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Yours is the majority opinion — and did I ever get letters about my answer! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You certainly missed the point. The 9-year-old who was taken to Mom's beauty parlor and had to watch his baby brother while Mom got a manicure didn't need a lesson in parenthood. He is not learning parenting skills — he is learning how it feels to be used, and is probably developing a huge dose of resentment.

If a child assumes the role of baby sitter, Mom should pay him/her accordingly. That way, both sides win.

KIDS ARE PEOPLE, TOO

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with your response to "Firstborn, California," the 34-year-old who had always been saddled with looking after her younger siblings.

I am the youngest of seven children and, along with my two brothers, I was cared for by our older sisters. Mother gave them almost full responsibility for our preschool care. The feelings of rejection and confusion have left scars.

Helping to make a family a close working unit is good. It's a must for future life, but the parent needs to be in control.

At the age of 70, I still have to work at not letting my sisters boss me around. It seems to have gotten worse with age — theirs and mine — along with the deaths of our two brothers.

Abby, this is what "Firstborn" was trying to say: You missed the boat! Don't you think that a mom who can afford a manicure should have made better arrangements to amuse and care for her children while she was there? I do!

LAST BORN IN MINNESOTA

DEAR ABBY: I was the oldest of 10 children. I had to take care of my younger brothers and sisters. I had to feed, bathe and dress them. In fact, that's all I did. My only "freedom" was school, but right after school, I had to go straight home to take care of my little sisters and brothers.

I couldn't get involved in any school activities — sports, choir, the class play — anything that would require my staying after school was out for me.

Naturally, I couldn't accept a date (not that the boys were breaking my door down), but when a boy did take a liking to me, I couldn't let him come to the house because it was full of kids who needed my services.

Naturally, I was resentful and angry, and a chronically angry person isn't very good company, so to make a long story short — guess who never got married?
