Tedders share 65 years of life and love

By Leigh Stone
Of The Carlisle Mercury Staff

CARLISLE — From the moment Conway and Catherine Tedder met at John-Mathers Nursing Home, they have been making a living, and a lot of love.

The Tedders were married 65 years ago Oct. 10, 1929. Residents of John-Mathers Nursing Home, the Tedders claim doing things together has been what's kept them together all these years. "We always go to church to-

"Pearlie, she'll be back home in two weeks."
"An' here we stayed together 65 years!" Catherine commented.

As a young couple, the Tedders' set up housekeeping at Cassidy Creek. Conway had orchards of apple, peach, etc. They had a tobacco base. Later, he worked as an orderly at Nicholas County Hospital for 25 years. Catherine also worked as a cook for the hospital and at various restaurants.

"She always liked to cook," said granddaughter Julie Hogg.

"I can make any kind of a pie," offered Catherine. Sharon Duncan, activities director at John-Mathers Nursing Home, stopped by for a room visit Friday morning.

"Pearlie, she'll be back in two weeks!"

"Sometimes Catherine will tell me how she would have prepared a meal different!"

Duncan said the Tedders were a wonderful couple and great to talk with.

A lifetime of work is filled with pleasant memories for the couple. "We both worked in the tobacco crop up and the orchard. That's the way people worked back then. I rode a tobacco stealer," Catherine recalled.

"They had a smokehouse and used to kill hogs," Julie said. "We'd grow about everything you could do on a farm. If we haven't, I don't know what we left out!" kidded Catherine.

Conway and Catherine Tedder were married 65 years ago. Here, they are shown with one of their children in the early years.
