Crop certification deadline nears, says Nicholas CFSA director Furnish

The Nicholas County Consolidated Farm Service Agency (CFSA) reminds all farmers to certify their 1995 crop planting, land uses, acreage conservation reserve and other program acreage as soon as possible.

Final certification date for all crops and land uses is July 15.

Jim Furnish, CFSA director, explained certification as the procedure by which farmers report their program acreage to establish their eligibility to receive the benefits of price support, deficiency payments, crop insurance and other farm program benefits. Acreage reports are required for all participating farms and farms that purchased crop insurance from CFSA.

Furnish said growers not participating in the 1995 programs should report their acreage to establish planting history, ensure future benefits, protect crop acreage bases and establish eligibility for the non-insured crop disaster assistance program. Aerial photographs are available for farmers to help identify their fields.

Jim said crop certification is particularly important to producers of quota crops such as tobacco. "In addition to these crops, however, all other crop acreage must be accurately reported."

Spring-seeded crops may be certified Monday through Friday at the local CFSA office.

Blue Mold Is Here!
Blue mold activity continues to increase in Kentucky with very favorable weather for the disease to develop much of the time. The disease is probably more active than most of us want to believe. Don't be trapped into thinking that by waiting until you know you have the disease present, you can then apply Ridomil on the plants to effectively control the disease. This is not the way to control blue mold. In fact, this is an illegal application method. Ridomil is labeled for ground application followed by cultivation. We want the product to be taken up through the root system of the tobacco plant. This protects both outside and from within the plant. Blue mold attacks both ways.
Many times other problems are blamed for the systemic infections blue mold can cause. Tobacco producers utilizing older plants from tobacco beds need to be very cautious. I have found several beds with blue mold on them this week. In fact, workers were pulling plants from some of the beds. Apply Ridomil to the soil. Take the time to move nozzle arrangements to the centers between rows followed closely by cultivating.
If blue mold activity continues to develop in other fields, you are dealing with the new form of blue mold that isn't controlled by Ridomil. Don't be trapped into thinking the company just weakened the product. While the tobacco is still small enough to be cultivated, apply 1 quart of Ridomil per acre. Then if you are unfortunate enough to get some of the non-resistant variety of blue mold, you then need to spray with Dithane DF. This product needs to be sprayed over the top of the plant with as much water as you can apply and sprayer pressure as high as you can run. Fog this product on and slow down the ground speed as much as possible. Efforts need to be made to break the connection of blue mold between plant beds and fields and to get the activity that exists currently under control before the tobacco leaves cover the centers of rows.
We still believe that Ridomil is the best control available for sensitive strains of blue mold. However, it needs to be used by label directions and applied correctly. Dithane DF will be needed when Ridomil resistance is a threat, and that will require weekly applications with good spray coverage. If you need additional information, you may contact the County Extension Office, 368 E. Main St., 289-2312.
