Water

 were wary of their family's health if they were to drink the water.
 • Twelve households reported problems with foreign particles in their drinking water. Several regularly found dead rodents, snakes and worms in their water. Several were concerned about the harmful effects of consuming bird droppings and asphalt particles from the roof.
 • Five Nicholas County families reported that the water they drink has made them ill forcing them to miss days of work or school. Two families noted that at least one member of the family suffers from chronic illness, a direct result of drinking the contaminated water from their private water systems.
 • A common complaint lodged by 41 households was the cost of having water hauled to their home; the cost of electric pump replacement and filter replacement. The cost of obtaining water for a private system is estimated by many county residents to be three to four times the cost of their neighbors who are already customers of the Nicholas County Water District. The cost estimates provided by residents range from $200 annually to a high of $1,800 annually. An average annual cost for private water service was determined to be $670 annually of $56 per month.
 • Six households reported bad tasting water supplies that often hurt.
 • Three households reported private water supply contained a high sulphur content, making it bad smelling and non-potable.
 Two households reported water containing salt, damaging appliances.

 • Thirteen households reported winter-weather problems - frozen pipes, in the house.
 • Thirty-five households reported they never had enough water and had to limit water for clothes washing, the dishwasher and shower and bath time.
 • Thirty-eight households complained of the inconvenience of having water hauled in a reliable manner.
 • Six reported water outages which when electricity fails, causes the pumps to cease functioning.
 • One household reported excessive water hardness damaging water appliances.
 • Four households reported a contaminated well or spring.
