Courthouse roof work to begin today

Nicholas County Courthouse should see some roof work begin today, Thursday, Nov. 30, said Nicholas County Judge Executive Chuck Smith Tuesday afternoon.

Olentzang Restorations, Marion, Ohio, was slated to begin work Nov. 15, but, as the judge understood, needed some more drawings of the gutters. Smith has been in close contact with architect James Piper throughout the delay. Olentzang may begin work on the gutters or behind the clock tower. Work is due done March 2.

The Carlisle Mercury Leigh Show Photo coffee mugs in his vast collection, mostly all derived from local yard sales. His favorite would be a musical cup from his late brother Marvin Snapp. His other favorite are from the Rev. Robert Allen of a Saltwell Church, and ones from Sharon Duncan. Snapp's been collecting eight years. He's paid from a dime to $2.50 for his mugs, located in about every room of his home.

Lady Jackets open season with win
