Letters To The Editor

Please vote November 7 asks writer

Dear Editor,

I want to encourage people to get out and vote on November 7. We all take our freedom for granted, and voting is a freedom. When you don't vote, you let someone else decide for you. We all need to take the time to vote-to voice our opinion about whom we think will be the best person for all of us.

I think Paul Patton is that person in this year's election for Governor. Paul was t born into a family with a lot of money- he has worked for a living and paid his bills. He worked his way up, finally becoming County Judge and Pike County and Lt. Governor of Kentucky. He has the background and experience to guide him as Governor of Kentucky. He does not make a lot of idle promises- he makes promises only when he has a real chance to carry thru with his promise.

I have met Paul, and his wife, Judi, several times, not only in Frankfort but here in Carlisle, Nicholas County. Paul knows where we live, he knows home of our problems and concerns, and as Governor he will try to help our county in whatever way he can. We have never had a chance before to elect a Governor who knows as much about Nicholas County as Paul Patton does.

A vote for Paul Patton as Governor of Kentucky is a vote for Carlisle and Nicholas County.

November 7- Vote

October 9 is deadline for local voter registration

Persons who move between counties before the registration books close on October 9 will remain eligible to vote only if they notify the county clerk in their new county or residence so the registration can be transferred.

If a person should move between counties after the registration books are closed, they are permitted to vote in the appropriate precinct in their former county of residence.

Persons who move within a county will be able to complete a change of address form and vote at their new precinct regardless of when they moved.

Dr. Lorenzo receives family physician's fellowship

ANAHEIM, CA-Jose T. Lorenzo, M.D. of Carlisle was awarded the degree of Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP) last month. He was one of only four family practice physicians in Kentucky to receive the honor this year.

The AAFP is a national medical association representing an estimated 82,000 family physicians in the United States.

To receive the degree of Fellow, a family physician must complete on of two tasks:

•Complete 600 hours of accredited continuing medical study.

•Achieve diplomate status in the specialty of family practice as a result of passing a certifying examination administered by the American Board of Family Practice.

The ceremony (at Anaheim) to welcome new Fellows into the association was very nice," Dr. Lorenzo remarked. "I am pleased to have achieved this honor."

Though many consider their regular doctors as "family physicians," most are unaware that a Family Physician is a specialty field with its own specific training and demands for skills. A Family Practice physician must maintain broad knowledge of the kinds of care needed to serve all family members. And, like all physicians, they must keep pace with today's rapidly developing medical technology.

Dr. Lorenzo also has advanced certifications in Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS), Pediatric Advanced Life Support (PALS) and is an active member of the American College of Emergency Physicians.

Chamber

its umbrella and go home."

Joan Conley of the Nicholas County Historical Society was one of the first to list ideas, but started the session with listing the area's strongest assests. A partial list of Conley's strong points of the area included Clay Wildlife Management, Tourism Inc., The Old Jail, the historical society, Carnico Golf Course, Blue Licks State Park, Nicholas County Courthouse, city parks, and many points of interest. One of her ideas for the community was to create a petting zoo for children at the Industrial Park. "People could bring their kids and it would get people into Carlisle."

Bill Crawford

Tourism Inc Co-Chairman Gladys Shrout thought antique shops could be made a main point of interest. She also discussed possible funding for brochures, once the chamber was ready for that type of promotion.

County Attorney Jock Conley mentioned that chamber members may form committees. One committee could interview other chambers to get an idea of how they market their communities.

Assistant County Attorney Licha Farah Jr., also a Chamber Board of Director, said the chamber could develop allies in state government to obtain funding for promotion projects. Farh also wanted Chamber to create a master plan for promotion, one covering the chambers plans for years to come.

At one point during the session, one idea got particular notice. Taylor Mathers thought since the chamber was "dreaming before doing" it could find a way to make Brushy Creek through downtown Carlisle a tourist attraction - or at least clean it up.

Other ideas were just as fanciful, but adhered to Crawford's criteria - that they be dreams with no thought about money. Another popular idea without thought to money was to build a restaurant on a boat on the Licking River. Other ideas didn't appear to be as expensive, such as building a skating rink or movie theater.

Mathers, hearing several say that Carlisle's strong point wasn't in obtaining industry, begged to differ. "We've got three new industries in the last few years. Let's not say it can't happen."

However, to develop the industrial park on the west end of town, a sewer system would have to be installed.

Mayor Clark said a water hook-up was nearby at the park and could be implemented.

"It (industrial park) doesn't look like a place I'd want to build something. I think it could be better developed with a bulldozer!" Mathers exclaimed.

Johnson Mathers Health Care Inc. Administrator Jim Wente was on hand at Monday night's Chamber of Commerce meeting to list ideas chamber meeting participants had to give a direction and goal focus. It is hoped the ideas will be prioritized so chamber members can better market the community to business and industry.

for the meeting and voiced concern for the roof. Attending were Judge Chuck Smith, County Clerk Doug Fryman, County Attorney Jock Conley, and magistrates Daryl Stacy, Danny Hughes, Juanita Smith, Avery Thornsburg and Melvin Fryman.

Dorsey Watkins, the only Nicholas County community member present besides representatives of both local newspapers, asked if the dome on the courthouse was included in the roof bid. The dome has shifted this past year.

"I'm afraid of what might happen between now and next year if we can't fix the dome," Watkins said.

"It is in bad shape," agreed Judge Smith per day.

Piper replied the dome wasn't included, but would cost possibly as much as an additional $15,000. Fifty-two percent of the roof funding is suppose to come form AOC funds, Judge Smith said.

The Magistrates voted to meet in a special called meeting to open roof construction bids at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Jockey

Executive Officer Donna Wolf Steigerwaldt couldn't attend the Carlisle program, but sent her best wishes to all employees. Steigerwaldt has visted Carlisle's Jockey in the past.

Emma was glad to inform sewing plant employees that after a tremor that the company was doing well. Unlike hearsay or false news reports from television and magazines that reportedly stated Jockey was near bankruptcy.

"There've been rumors that Jockey was facing bankruptcy. I assure you that it's nothing of the kind like that. It's totally false - nothing like that," Emma stated.

Emma said he knew Jockey was doing well because he worked closely with the financial reports and attended many executive board meetings that have stated Jockey was doing well - despite the slump of the apparel industry in general.

The consumer wants our product," Emma enthused.

Emma also mentioned that employee concerns were being heard about excessive overtime. The amount of overtime has lessened in Carlisle, he said giving scheduling credit to Charles Kelley, also a Jockey executive.
