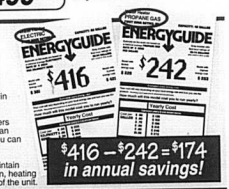
The Benefits of a Propane Gas Water Heater



$416 – $242 = $174 in annual savings!

Lower Energy Costs . . . your water heater is the second largest energy user in your home. A propane water heater can provide you twice the hot water at a lower cost per gallon than an electric unit. It is possible to save thousands of dollars in energy costs over the life of the unit.

More Hot Water, Faster. . . according to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, propane water heaters have a recovery rate that is 2 ½ times faster than electric units. This decreases your chance of running out of hot water and means you can replace a large electric water heater with a smaller propane water heater.

Lower Maintenance Costs . . . propane water heaters cost less to maintain because propane burners frequently outlast the life of the water heater. In comparison, heating elements in electric water heaters often must be replaced several times over the life of the unit.
