University of Kentucky specialist says new farm bill months away

The 1990 Farm Bill expires September 30. Farmers, however, shouldn't expect the 1995 bill to be passed before October 1. Instead, it will be a few months before the new farm bill is passed, according to an agricultural policy specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Right now, Congress is preoccupied with the budget, which must be passed before October 1. If such a budget is not passed, non-essential functions of government must be cut.

Free screening given during Mental Health Awareness. At any given time, 10 million Americans suffer from depression, yet less than one-third of those individuals seek help.

In an effort to broaden public awareness, depression will be the focus of a mental health screening to be offered, free, by the Counseling Center of St. Crispin Center on Monday, October 2, as part of a complete examination - without a physician's referral.

Resource Center offers services. The Nicholas County Family Youth Resource Center works directly with children, youth and adults in Nicholas County. The center provides a variety of services to help children and youth with learning disabilities and other special needs.

RC & D receives $1500 grant. John Reisk, President of the Linking River Valley RCRB Council, announced that a grant of $1,500 had been received. The grant will be used to orchestrate a short video on the board's rotational grazing and the benefits associated with the practice.
