Not enough done for Ky. veterans

Opinion by Laura Fryman

I was told a very alarming piece of information this past weekend. Apparently the V.A. hospital will be closing some of its services to the veterans of this state.

In my opinion there is not enough done for these fine men and women that gave their time and their abilities to fight for a country that they called home.

Are we trying to tell them that just because you fought for us we don't owe you anything.

Well I believe we owe them more than we could ever repay. Instead of cutting services for the veterans why can't we cut some of the benefits we give healthy people that could go out and work.

In my opinion we have all ready taken away from some veterans their minds, their ability to work and the right to stand proud for something they did for a whole country, not just themselves.

I would like to be the first person to stand up and say thank you what you did for me and my family. If we start taking away from the ones that should get what they deserve, what are we telling those people we only took care of you when you could do something for us.

It's time for America to stand up and fight for the rights of those who fought for us in the wars of this country. From the first war to the last war these fine outstanding citizens should be taken care of.

One last Santa letter!

Santa Claus dropped the following letter as it didn't get published in last week's edition. But when he found the letter Santa forwarded it to be published in The Mercury.

Dear Santa,

Hello! My name is Colin Hunter Steven Ball. I am three-years-old and my Mommy and Daddy and that I have been pretty good this year. For Christmas, I would like to have Buzz Lightyear and his spaceship, Great Adventure Castle, a small cassette player device, some Power Rangers, Ninja Turtles, and lots of clothes.

Please don't forget my grandparents, my cousin, Dustin, Mrs. Stephanie and Mrs. Sarah and all the kids at Day Care. I'll leave you plenty of cookies and milk under the tree.

Love,
Colin

4. Nov. 1-8 proclaimed Jr. High football week (Nov. 7, 1996): The Nicholas County Jr. High set history with the win of the Bluegrass Conference Central Division Championship Carlisle City Council proclaimed Nov. 1-8 as Junior High Football Week."

Carlisle Mayor Ronnie Clark said "I am very proud of the achievement they have made in football. Hopefully it will spill over in everything they do." He went on to say, "I would like to thank the parents for doing such a wonderful job of getting the children to practices and staying involved with their children."

5. Nicholas band earns highest honor (Nov. 7, 1996): The Nicholas County Marching Band carried away the state's top honor in its class Saturday (Nov. 2) when it won the top prize - the Governors Cup in the 1996 Kentucky Music Educator's Association (KMEA) Kentucky Marching Band Championship.

Nicholas County won the Class A while Mercer won Class AA and Harrison Class AAA and Lafayette won Class AAAA.

The four winners were among 63 bands in competition.

Eric Hale is the band director.

6. Mattox wins Nicholas school board by two votes (Nov. 7, 1996): One of the closest school board races in history occurred during Tuesday's General Election when write-in candidate Betty Poe narrowly lost by just two votes to Donna Gail Mattox. "We counted and recounted. That lady, Mrs. Poe, did her homework. But Donna Gail won," said Nicholas County Court Clerk Doug Fryman. Nicholas County had a voter turnout at the General Election of 52 percent with 2,431 people voting. "I really didn't expect this. This was a pretty good turnout.

Poe said later Tuesday night she wasn't discouraged. 'You never know. You work hard. My campaign people worked very hard, two men and a lady. I'll talk to my people about a recount, but I don't really know. They counted the votes twice. But I'm not discouraged. I'm glad the people got out and spoke their mind."

NOTE: A recount was held the following Monday at the request of City Council candidate Carty Lester. All votes remained the same as election night.

7. Local team members return home as championship team at 35th Annual Frankfort Kiwanis Invitational Tournament All-Star Championship (Aug. 1, 1996): The Nicholas County 11-12 year All-Star team has done something that Nicholas County has not done before. The team went to Frankfort Aug. 26-28 only to return home with a 1st place trophy in the Frankfort 35th annual Kiwanis Invitational Baseball Tournament. Nicholas County has been going to the competition for several years and finished second in 1986. The final score was 3-2x in an excellent show of sportsmanship and talent. The players of the team were Josh Fryman, Kyle Hunt, Darren Herrington, Seth Saunders, Adam Hunter, R.S. Sexton, Brandon Morris, Ernie Cobb, Richard Reid, Shane Smith, Justin Kenney, Blake Roser and Eric Earlywine. Coaching staff was Head Coach Jackie Kenney, Assistant Coaches Mike Fryman, James Kenney and Doug Sexton.

8. Local grocery store under new ownership (July 25, 1995): IGA is now under new ownership. The two new owners are Charles Smith of Lexington and Dan Dexter of Richmond. Smith and his wife, Karen, have two daughters, Kristy, 18, and Dawn, 13. Dexter has one child, Jason, 14, and a wife, Laurie.

The two gentlemen have almost 60 years of combined retail grocery experience. The pair presently own and operate two stores. The own Carlisle IGA and a grocery store in Richmond.

9. Courthouse roof repairs - County gives contractor $10,000 more (March 7, 1996): A special meeting of the Nicholas County Fiscal Court was called to order Thursday, Feb. 29. The agenda included a discussion of the courthouse roof project, currently underway. Present at the meeting were Melvin Whitaker, supervisor for Olentangy Restoration, and Jim Piper, an architect for Lyle and Associates.

Whitaker told the court about rotting wood in the lookouts which supports the metal guttering around the roof. He found nearly 60 percent of the lookouts needed to be replaced. "Of the first 68 feet worked around the roof, we found about 28 feet to be okay, but we had to replace nearly all of the lookouts within the other 40 feet."

These extra repairs were not anticipated and were not included in a bid submitted by Olentangy Restoration - therefore extra funds were needed to complete the project.

This news was met with much rebuttal from some Nicholas County magistrates. Daryl Stacy proposed that with the age of roof taken into consideration, some of the so-called extra costs should have been foreseen and included in the bid and final contract. He also said a company with the experience Olentangy had should have anticipated such costs and re pairs.

Whitaker replied, "Every job has unseen problems and if you figure it in and try to guess what's there you'll never get the job because your company's bid will be higher. It would be hard to come up with a percentage of how much wood is bad without actually seeing it."

After a brief discussion, the Fiscal Court reluctantly approved the additional cost 3-2 in hopes that this would be the end of the issue.

10. Kentucky Governor Paul Patton visits Nicholas County (Oct. 31, 1996): Governor Paul Patton visited Nicholas County last Thursday and put a $519,000 check in the hand of County Judge Executive Chuck Smith. The check will help provide a water line in rural Nicholas County.

The children of Nicholas County got to ask questions. Mathew Becker asked "How do you feel about school uniforms?"

The Governor answered the question with a question. He asked the students how they felt about uniforms. A large part of the student audience voiced disapproval of uniforms being mandated in school.

Jeffrey Dunn asked what can Nicholas County do to get a new high school.

The Governor replied it is nice to have a good, clean school, but the most important thing is the teachers in the school.

Planning ahead can prevent some roadside nightmares

The two biggest fears of drivers include getting help quickly in an emergency, and being late or missing an appointment, according to a recent survey by Lieberman Research. Below freezing temperatures can intensify these fears.

The Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation is advising motorists that advanced planning can prevent roadside nightmares from occurring this winter.

"Most drivers don't plan for an emergency because the majority of their driving is done in familiar areas where help is always within reach."

Most drivers don't plan for emergencies because the majority of their driving is done in familiar areas where help is always within reach. Emergency road service is easily available by calling AAA, a local garage, or a family member. Drivers travelling during winter many miles from home may find themselves unexpectedly stranded due to a breakdown, or bad road conditions.

"Any motorist planning a long drive should have a strategy for suddenly being struck in a remote area during bad weather, " said Lilla Mason, director of the Blue Grass Auto Safety Club Foundation. The Safety Foundation offers the following advice for anyone taking a long car trip during winter:

• Keep at least 1/2 tank of gas in your car at all times.

• Got a new battery before leaving, or have yours checked.

• Hide any key on your car, or in your purse or wallet.

• Store your sleeping bags in the trunk of the car instead of in a closet or the garage. They can keep you and any passengers warm while help is on the way.

The stress of suddenly becoming stranded is greatly reduced if you have planned a strategy for just an occurrence. He are some tips for designing your emergency plan:

• If you have a car phone, keep a list a phone numbers to call for roadside assistance. Include the state police number of every state you will be travelling through.

• If you do not have a car phone, lock your doors, turn on your four-way flashers, and wait in the car for police to arrive.

• If anyone stops to offer help have the appropriate state police number written down (in Kentucky it is 1-800-222-5555) and ask them to call and report that you are stranded.

• Wait in your car for help to arrive, never try to walk a long distance in cold weather. Remember you have been sitting in a warm car, and you will feel a windchill factor once you start walking.

• Concentrate on your game plan, rather than your situation.

The Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation is a non-profit organization created to increase public awareness of traffic safety. For more information about driving in bad weather conditions, call the office by calling 233-1111 (in Lexington) or 1-800-568-5222 (outside Lexington).
